WASHINGTON, SHOCKED, CABLES GERMANY FOR HER SIDE OF THE CASE

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Shocked and appalled by the tragic aspect of the Lusitania disaster as hourly developments disclosed its magnitude and far-reaching possibilities and revealed the probable loss of 137 American lives, President Wilson and his advisers are waiting for the whole facts and for a crystallization of public opinion to aid in laying out the course the United States will pursue in this latest international complication—the gravest the president has faced since the war began.

Nowhere in administration circles is there any disposition to minimize the situation, but President Wilson while seeking the facts, hopes the country will assume an examining attitude and reserve full judgment until all complete information is at hand.

ASK COMPLETE FACTS.

As more details began coming in activities at the White House and the executive departments of the government disclosed how much administration officials realized the tensity of the situation. Secretary Bryan cabled Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to informally ask the German government for its report of the disaster, and to Ambassador Page in London he sent messages urging renewed efforts to aid the suffering and gather information.

President Wilson gave strict instructions to be notified of any important dispatches.

Cabinet officers who had planned a week-end holiday away from Washington cancelled it, and Secretary Garrison abandoned a week's official trip through the south.

Chairman Stone of the senate foreign relations committee issued a statement counselling calmness and advising "don't rock the boat."

The president, Secretary Bryan and other members of the cabinet, were visibly depressed. Persons who talked with them found them back at a table and grieved at the horror of the catastrophe. Notwithstanding the warnings had been given and been regarded as inconceivable by high officials that threatened sinking of the vessel actually would be carried into effect, and that the Lusitania was a British ship flying the British flag, and even had merchandise of war on board, did not remove from their minds the ever-recurring thought that a hostile submarine deliberately destroyed the ship with the knowledge that hundreds of defenseless neutrals and women and children were aboard.

Everywhere that aspect overshadowed the legal phase of the case, for while there is said to be no precedent in international law for the attack without warning on a belligerent merchantman, it was realized that defense might be made on the charge that guns were mounted on the deck. That, however, the British government had denied.

In official quarters there was appprehension that the American people might not consider such representations sufficient. A special session of congress has been talked of, but there has been no intimation of it as yet from any official quarter.

All officials were sparing in their comments. They realized that a word from the high officials of the government might weigh with public opinion before the facts had been received and digested.

"We are informing ourselves as rapidly as possible of the facts, and doing what we can for those injured," was the only statement Secretary Bryan would make.

Other international developments were completely overshadowed. The annexation of Belgium by Germany was hardly commented on. The far eastern crisis, now apparently avoided, was almost totally eclipsed.

In official circles, while the torpedoing of the Lusitania was deplored, there was much speculation as to why the swift ship had allowed itself in the path of submarines. Officers said it was very difficult for a torpedo to strike an ocean liner going at full speed and did not understand where the British destroyers that ordinarily convoy vessels in the course of the voyage could have been when the Lusitania was struck in broad daylight.

Foreign governments and legations were deeply interested in the great sea tragedy and what led up to it.

The British embassy had received no direct advice and the available governmental information was being given out by Secretary Bryan. The French, Russian and other embassies manifested much concern.

At the German embassy both Count von Bernstorff the ambassador, and Hansel von Hainhausen, counsellor, were out of town, but the ambassador was expected to return late today. It was detected known, however, that no advices had been received making reference to the catastrophe. The general sentiment prevailing was one of concern and regret that the destruction of the ship had been attended with loss of life. It was said embassy officials had not received any notification that the big British liner had removed her guns.

An air of gravity pervaded the white house as officials went about making arrangements to receive direct all messages being sent to the state department. The chief concern of administration officials was the state of public opinion when details began to come in.

President Wilson arose early and read the newspapers and such official dispatches about the Lusitania as had been received before breakfast. Telegrams from friends and relatives of passengers on the Lusitania began arriving early in the day. They immediately were referred to the state department.

Senator Lodge, ranking Republican of the foreign relations committee, said he was not prepared to discuss the sinking of the Lusitania; the sinking of a passenger ship even of a belligerent without giving passengers an opportunity

NEWCOMERS' DAY TO BE OBSERVED SUNDAY

Churches Join Move to Make New Residents of Atlanta Feel at Home

Not only will Tuesday be Newcomers' night in Atlanta, but Sunday has been named Newcomers' Sunday. Even the churches have indorsed the movement and have issued a special invitation to all newcomers to attend church on Sunday and hear what the preachers have to say by way of welcome to Atlanta's new citizens.

On Sunday night at the Forsyth theater, Dean John R. Atkinson, of St. Philip's cathedral, will take this celebration for his subject. The chamber of commerce is right in behind it, and in fact everybody is or should be back of it. All Atlanta is expected to turn out, the old and young, the long time residents and the newcomers. It is already an evident fact that there are a bunch of the latter in the city, as their names have been pouring in by the hundreds, and the Rotarians are looking for more. They want everybody who has moved to Atlanta or made it his home since January 1, 1914, to be present Tuesday night as guests not only of the Rotary club, but of all Atlanta.

And when it comes to the programyou will have to be there to see for yourself, to really understand what the word "program" means in this connection. There will be music by a brass band, singing by the Tech Glee club, speeches—a lot of them, but short ones, by the governor, the mayor, Governor-elect Harris, Mell R. Wilkinson, and others. Not to speak of other features which will surprise, delight and entrance.

Be sure to let the secretary at 910 Third National Bank building have all the names of all the newcomers you know anything about, so the Rotary people can get after them.

GREAT BATTLESHIPS ARE WELCOMED IN SILENCE

No Cheers Go Up as Atlantic Fleet Steams Into New York Harbor

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—New York's welcome to the sixteen battleships of the Atlantic fleet which steamed into the harbor today for the naval demonstration here, was virtually one of silence. The usual salute of 21 guns at sunrise was lacking and as the ships swept up the Hudson scarcely a cheer went up from the crowds lining the shore.

There seemed to be a general spirit of depression, inspired apparently by the Lusitania disaster.

ATLANTIANS NOT IN LIST OF SURVIVORS GIVEN OUT SO FAR

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hunter and Leonard Bistic Not on List of Survivors Given Out by Consular Officials

CAPTAIN, FIRST AND SECOND OFFICERS SAVED

U. S. Consul Lauriat, at Queenstown, Reports 634 Out of 2,160 Were Saved, 51 Out of 188 Americans

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hunter, of Atlanta, were on board the Lusitania and are believed to have been lost, but Dr. Walpole Brewer, former house physician at the Hotel Ansley, is known definitely to have taken another boat. The only other person from this city reported on the Lusitania was Leonard Bistic, and so far all inquiry has failed to discover his name in telephone book or directory or anyone here who knows him. It is believed that dispatches which gave his address as Atlanta were incorrect.

J. T. Scott, local representative of the Clyde Charleston fast freight line and close personal friend of Dr. Brewer, met at rest Saturday and saw that Dr. Brewer had sailed on the Lusitania. Late Friday evening he received a letter from Dr. Brewer, written aboard the White Star liner Canopic, which sailed May 1 from New York, but went by way of Boston over the route to the Azore islands and thence to Palermo, Italy. Dr. Brewer was on the Canopic on his way to join the Red Cross service with the Austrian army. He had intended at first to serve with the Red Cross of the allies in France, but he was transferred to the Austrian side, which was made known after he reached New York.

Dr. Brewer and Mrs. Hunter's first trip home to Scotland in nine years, looked forward to by both of them for many months. They came to America in 1906, taking up residence in Atlanta soon afterward. Their home for three years was on Gordon street, but for the last six years they had lived at 319 East Georgia avenue, where Mrs. Inglis now resides. Mr. Hunter was a cabinetmaker for the Colcord Lumber company.

Months ago Mr. and Mrs. Hunter planned to make a visit to Aberdeen, Scotland, their old home, to see their parents, both of whom are living in the old country. Their booked passage on the Lusitania, and a week ago Thursday left Atlanta. Mrs. Inglis received a letter from them from New York in which they said they were all ready to sail on the Lusitania.

She has had no word from them since, and both she and her brother, Alec, a stone mason, were anxiously awaiting news Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter have many friends here, especially among the Scotch and English citizens of the city.

U. S. Consular Office Gives List of Survivors

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—A dispatch received at the state department early today from Consul Lauriat at Queenstown put the number of rescued of all nationalities from the Lusitania disaster at 624. An earlier dispatch from him had said 700.

The consul's latest message added the names of four Americans saved to those mentioned in his previous dispatch, making a total of fifty-one Americans saved. Few others were rescued, he said. This leaves 137 Americans unaccounted for.

Several unidentified bodies had been recovered, the consul reported.

The four additional names mentioned by Consul Lauriat are: N. N. Allen, Patrick Shattery, Mr. Bylington and Mr. Brooks.

The consul added that the Americans would proceed Saturday afternoon for London, reaching there Sunday.

BERLIN REJOICES AS THE WORLD MOURNS

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 7.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen says:

"Berlin newspapers print the news of the sinking of the Lusitania in colossal type, and hail it as a new triumph for Germany's naval policy. The general impression is that England has got what she deserves."

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Berlin says:

"Hundreds of telegrams of congratulations are being sent to Admiral von Tirpitz, the German minister of marine, on the sinking of the Lusitania, which is considered by the Germans to be an answer to the destruction off the Falkland Islands of the German squadron under the command of Admiral von Spee.

"The news has been received by the public with mixed expressions of amazement and enthusiasm. The newspapers praise the pluck and daring of the submarine crew."

The British government today made the following announcement:

"The statement appearing in some newspapers that the Lusitania was armed is wholly false."

Paris Official Statement Declares That Germans Have Been Repulsed in Flanders Following Two Attacks

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, May 7.—(Via London.)—Official announcement was made by the war office today that the city of Libau, in the province of Courland, Russia, has been captured by the Germans.

The text of the statement follows:

"On the greater part of the western frontier there were yesterday the usual artillery duels.

"An infantry battle took place in the Vosges. Only in this section did the French attack our positions. All their attacks failed with heavy losses to them.

"The troops we sent against the city of Libau took 18 cannon and four machine guns fell into our hands.

"The pursuit of the defeated Russians in the southeast was continued steadily throughout yesterday. Our advance forces crossed the river Wisloka in the neighborhood of Krosno.

"The action led to the cutting off of considerable Russian forces. The total number of prisoners taken in the Galician arena since the end of April should so far have been increased to about 70,000 men. Thirty-eight cannon including nine of heavy caliber have been taken from the Russians."

In the capture of Libau the Germans have gained one of the main objects of their invasion of the Russian Baltic provinces. This movement was designed to occupy Libau and Riga, two of the principal Russian ports on the Baltic, which would enable the Germans to harass Russian communications with Petrograd.

Libau is an important industrial center, seventy-five miles along the sea coast from the German border.

British Make New Advance Against Germans at Ypres

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, May 8.—The war office has issued the following:

"Fighting yesterday at daybreak the Germans delivered a violent attack against the British lines near St. Julien This attack was repulsed and the enemy suffered heavy losses.

"South of Ypres, at Hill 60, the British yesterday captured a further section of the trenches.

"There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front."

Many Turkish Batteries Are Reported Silenced

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, May 8.—A Tenedos dispatch to the Havas agency says that although the bombardment of the Dardanelles forts is being continued by the allied fleets, all the Turkish batteries as far up the straits as Nagara at the end of the narrows nearest Constantinople have ceased firing and apparently have been destroyed.

A Havas message from Athens says the allies are preparing to debark another landing force at the Dardanelles.

SEVEN PEOPLE KILLED IN CAROLINA STORM

Pee Dee Section of State Swept by Destructive Wind and Rain

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 8.—Seven persons were killed, many seriously injured and property worth several thousand dollars was destroyed by a tornado which swept through the Pee section of South Carolina late yesterday. Greatest damage was reported in Clarendon, Orangeburg, Darlington and Marlboro counties. Houses were wrecked, trees uprooted and crops injured in many localities.

At Manning, in Clarendon county, a portion of the business section was practically wiped out. Miss Clara Baggett, Beasley Davis and a negro porter were killed there.

Inez Tart and her little brother, lost their lives on a plantation in Marlboro county. The almshouse of Marlboro county, in which were housed both negroes and whites, was wrecked, two deaths and several serious injuries resulting.

Damage to telegraph and telephone lines in the territory affected has prevented the receipt of more detailed information.

RAGSDALE AND BARBER ARE SLATED FOR TRIAL

Rev. C. B. Ragsdale and R. L. Barber, charged with perjury in swearing to false affidavits in the Frank case, were Saturday upon the docket of Judge Ben H. Hill's branch of the superior court for trial Monday. These defendants have been on the docket for trial three times before, but their cases have never actually been begun in court.

GULFLIGHT ATTACK MORE GRAVE THAN LUSITANIA DISASTER

Senator Hoke Smith Says Torpedoeing of Oil Steamer Involves More Serious Problem Than Sinking of Liner

CALLS ATTENTION TO PEOPLE BEING WARNED

More Attention Was Paid to Submarines and Less to Seizing U. S. Cargoes Attacks Might Be Avoided

BY RALPH SMITH

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Senator Hoke Smith believes that in so far as the United States is concerned the torpedoing of the Gulflight involves a far more serious problem than the sinking of the Lusitania. He feels also that if Great Britain had given more attention to German submarines and less to interference with American commerce, some of the submarine disasters might have been avoided.

"While the sinking of the Lusitania is a great shock to our citizens, and will rank among the most inhuman acts of war it should not be forgotten that citizens of the United States were warned of the danger in time for them to avoid going upon the vessel," said Senator Smith today.

The vessel is also reported to have had on it reserves intended to join the army of the Allies, and munitions of war intended for the destruction of Germans.

"We should also remember that Germany practically accepted the suggestion of the United States to withdraw her submarine warfare against passenger and commercial vessels if Great Britain would withdraw her exclusion of foodstuffs from the women and children of Germany and cease violating the rights of neutrals in the shipment of non-contraband goods.

"From an international standpoint, so far as the United States is concerned, I agree with those who regard the torpedoing of the Gulflight as involving a more serious problem than the sinking of the Lusitania.

"The Gulflight was an American vessel flouting the flag of the United States. Whether it was sunk by a German submarine, or by a mine, or in what way it was sunk, is still a matter for investigation.

"I cannot but feel that if Great Britain had given more attention to fighting German submarines, and less to seizing vessels carrying cotton to neutral ports, some of the submarine attacks might have been avoided."

Lusitania Carried 4,200 Cases of Ammunition

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Insurance on the Lusitania, it was said today, amounted to $7,500,000. The vessel was valued at $10,000,000. Her cargo was reckoned at $750,000.

It is understood the liner carried one-third of the insurance, the remainder being divided among Lloyds and other underwriters. About one-half the insurance on the cargo was taken by local underwriters and the rest by Lloyds.

The Lusitania carried 25 bags of mail. She had no specie aboard. On her manifest the largest single item was listed as rifle sights and ammunition, 4,200 cases, $152,400, consigned to London. The next item in value was a consignment of furs, valued at $119,000.

Miscellaneous items included sheet brass, copper wire and various manufactured goods, hundreds of tons of beef and bacon, and many thousand pounds of butter, cheese and lard.

137 AMERICANS GO DOWN WITH GIANT CUNARDER LUSITANIA

The latest available information indicates that about two-thirds of the persons on board the Lusitania lost their lives.

The number of passengers is given by the Cunard steamship representatives in New York as 1,254, and of the crew as 665, a total of 1,919. The number of survivors now accounted for is 703. This indicates a death list of 1,216.

Hopes that the list of persons saved may be materially increased were dashed by an announcement from the British admiralty that all but one of the rescue fleet which put out from Queenstown had reported, and that there was little prospect of news of further survivors. Nevertheless inquiries are being made all along the coast in the hope that other rescues may have been made by small craft which put into isolated points.

Of the 290 first-class passengers it now is believed only 76 were saved. No word has been received of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Charles Frohman and other prominent men who were aboard.

The story of the Lusitania came in slowly, owing partly to confusion at Queenstown, where most of the survivors were landed. No information was available as to how many of the Americans on the Lusitania had gone down. Stories told by survivors seemed to confirm the earlier report that the Lusitania had been struck by two torpedoes.

LONDON PLACES DEATH LIST AT 1,364 PERSONS, 703 SAVED.
(By Associated Press.)

"While the sinking of the Lusitania is a great shock to our citizens, and will rank among the most inhuman acts of war it should not be forgotten that citizens of the United States were warned of the danger in time for them to avoid going upon the vessel," said Senator Smith today.

LONDON, May 8.—The press bureau is informed by the admiralty that no more reports regarding the Lusitania have been received and that the number of survivors already given may be regarded as approximately correct.

Inquiries are being made along the coast, but there is little hope of news of further survivors.

A telegram, however, has just been received by British officials from Cork saying 45 more Lusitania survivors have been landed at Queenstown from a drifter.

An admiralty statement shortly before 6 o'clock this morning placed the number of Lusitania survivors at 658.

At 1:50 p. m. London received a report that 45 more survivors had ben brought into Queenstown. If these 45 were not included in the 658 the total of survivors would be 703, and the death list would consequently reach the total of 1,364.

QUEENSTOWN SAYS NO HOPE IS HELD FOR RESCUE OF ANY OF MISSING 1,560.
(By Associated Press.)

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—It is now estimated here that 600 will be the outside number of those saved from the Lusitania. This increases the death list to 1,560, as 2,160 souls were aboard the ship when the torpedo of the German submarine struck her.

The various craft that went to the scene have returned, all of them bringing survivors. No trace has been found of Alfred G. Vanderbilt or Charles Frohman.

The latest rescue boats to arrive are bringing mostly bodies of dead picked up at the scene of the disaster. The dead now here number 124. Many of them are women.

Queenstown authorities are rendering every assistance. The manager of the Cunard line has taken ample hotel accommodations as well as rooms in lodging houses, and, here the survivors are being sent.

SURVIVORS WHO ARE ABLE TO WALK HAUNT THE DOCKS.

But both men and women rescued, if they are able to walk, refuse to remain in their hotels. They haunt the docks, waiting and watching for friends and relatives. Many still are bewildered, and their accounts of the disaster are not entirely clear. One and all, however, unite in eulogizing the behavior of the ship's officers.

Five minutes after the Lusitania was hit with the second torpedo amidships she had listed so that the lifeboats on one side could not be launched at all. The work of getting as many as possible, for the most part women and children, into the only boats that could be got clear, was undertaken at once by the crew and was performed efficiently and with heroism.

The scene as the big liner went down is described by the survivors as heartrending beyond words.

LIFE BOATS TOO CROWDED TO PICK UP ANY MORE FLOATERS.

Bathing for life, the passengers called to relatives and friends or bade each other good-bye.

The small boats which had got away picked up many survivors who with life belts, or clinging to wreckage, were floating on the surface. But soon the boats all were crowded. These boats were in turn picked up by rescuing steamers coming at full speed from shore points, but in many cases four or more hours elapsed before the rescuers arrived. In many cases the only work left for them was to collect from the water and floating bodies of the dead. Several passengers were taken aboard trawlers severely injured, only to die before they could be transferred ashore.

AMERICAN LINER FLYING OLD GLORY SAILS FOR WAR ZONE WITH CABINS PACKED.
(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—The American liner Philadelphia, sailing for Liverpool today over the route traveled by the Lusitania, steamed away with full cabins and with berths in the steerage at a premium. The usual scenes of animation at the pier were replaced, however, by an atmosphere more subdued and sober.

Notwithstanding the American flag which flies at the liner's stern, Captain Mills will observe every precaution for the safety of passengers when he reaches the war zone.

"What I propose to do," the veteran commander said, "is known only to myself."

Six cancellations were recorded at the last minute. The Philadelphia had aboard 940 passengers, and left behind 150 persons, according to officers, of the line, who would have sailed had there been accommodations.

NO MORE AMERICAN SURVIVORS FOUND; 137 BELIEVED DEAD.
(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—State department officials said this afternoon that the fact that no messages had been received since early morning indicated to them that no more American survivors had been found. Their dispatches accounted for 51 survivors out of the 188 Americans aboard.

The American consul at Queenstown reported to the United States embassy in London today that the total survivors at Queenstown number 634.

"About 63 bodies remain unidentified," the message adds.

PARIS EXPECTS U. S TO GIVE GERMANY UNPLEASANT SHOCK

Sinking of Lusitania and Loss of Americans Termed "Supreme Act of Cruelty"--Predictions of Press

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, May 8.—The sinking of the Lusitania has aroused deep indignation here, where many of the passengers, notably A. G. Vanderbilt and Charles Frohman, were well known. The press characterizes the torpedoing of the steamer "as an act of supreme cruelty, surpassing everything yet perpetrated and violating the most elementary sentiments of humanity."

The Matin expresses the opinion that the wave of indignation, which will be provoked in America, perhaps may lead Washington to take measures which will be unpleasant to Germany.

WIND WREAKS HAVOC IN CAROLINA TOWN

Maysville Partly Destroyed and Lives Believed to Have Been Lost

(By Associated Press.)

COLUBIA, S. C., May 8.—That the town of Maysesville, in Sumter county, was partially destroyed and that loss of life may have resulted there from the tornado which late yesterday killed 8, injured 10 and did damage to property estimated at $500,000 in Marlboro and Clarendon counties, developed in a report received here early today. Details of the destruction at Maysville were lacking.

Dispatches from Manning gave the loss of life there as four with eight injured. The belief existing there was that several persons were buried under the ruins of the five brick buildings demolished by the wind.

Four persons are known to have been killed in Marlboro county with a considerable number of others injured. Wires were broken and efforts to obtain details proved fruitless early today.

Sumter substantiated to an extent the report from Manning that Maysesville suffered severely from the storm. Messengers were sent there from Sumter.

A number of registrations have already been received by County Superintendent J. C. King, who is acting as registrar. Special attention will be paid to the courses in manual training, domestic science and home economics.

CREW OF LUSITANIA SHOWED NO TERROR AS TORPEDO STRUCK

Men Went About Work of Getting Passengers Into Boats in Prompt and Efficient Manner, Says Survivor

(By Associated Press.)

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—A sharp lookout for submarines was kept aboard the Lusitania as she approached the Irish coast, according to Ernest Cowper, a Toronto newspaper man, who was among the survivors landed here. He declared that after the ship was torpedoed there was no panic among the crew, but that they went about the work of getting passengers into the boats in a prompt and efficient manner.

"As we neared the coast of Ireland," said Mr. Cowper, "we all joined in the lookout, for a possible attack by a submarine was the sole topic of conversation. I was chatting with a friend at the rail about 2 o'clock, when suddenly I caught a glimpse of the conning tower of a submarine about a thousand yards distant. I immediately called my friend's attention to it. Immediately we both saw the track of a torpedo followed almost instantly by an explosion. Portions of the splintered hull were sent flying into the air and then another torpedo struck. The ship began to list to starboard.

"The crew at once proceeded to get the passengers into boats in an orderly, prompt and efficient manner. Miss Helen Smith appeared on deck. I gave her a placed her in a boat and saw her safely away. I got into one of the last boats to leave.

"Some of the boats could not be launched, as the vessel was sinking. There were a large number of women and children in the second cabin. Forty of the children were less than a year old."

Two stokekrs have confirmed the report that the steamer was struck by two torpedoes. The first entered No. 1 stokehold and the second the engine room.

Passengers Discarded Clothes as Ship Sank

(By Associated Press.)

DUBLIN, May 8.—Many of the Lusitania's survivors who landed at Queenstown were only partly clad, having cast aside as much clothing a possible when they donned life belts. Most of the men, women and children helped ashore by local blueJackets still wore these belts. One woman more than seventy years old was taken from the water after having been kept afloat for some time by the life belt she wore.

"I was talking with Mr. Winters, of the Cunard line, when the ship was hit," said Charles C. Harnwick, of New York, who has crossed the Atlantic sixty-one times. "Winters got into boat No. 17 which overturned and then swam to boat No. 19. Most of the salon passengers were at luncheon and the proportion saved was small.

"Mrs. M. M. Pappadopoula, who was on her way to Athens with her husband, swam for a long distance toward shore before she was picked up. She believes her husband was drowned."

Julian de Ayala, Cuban consul general at Liverpool, although one of his legs was badly injured, swam about for a long time and came ashore wearing only his underclothing. He climbed into three different boats but apparently the first two overturned.

Bertram Jenkins, of New York, helped two women into a boat which overturned before it reached the water, but later he saw one of the women, Miss Brandell, an opera singer, at Queenstown.

to leave, the senator thought a new thing in warfare.

Among senators at the capital there was a general feeling of alarm, but all refrained from entering into public discussion while awaiting developments. The opinion prevailed that loss of American lives and the manner in which the Lusitania was destroyed would arouse public opinion tremendously.

"KEEP OUR HEADS," SAYS STONE

Chairman Stone of the foreign relations committee made this statement:

"The tragedy is of course to be profoundly regretted. If the reports as to the loss of life are true, the sympathies of the civilized world will be deeply stirred. But for us, it seems to me that good sense dictates that we keep our heads until we get our bearings. It is a bad time to get rattled and act impulsively. Don't rock the boat."

Without expressing an opinion as to our relations to this event or as to our duty in the premises, there are some facts we cannot overlook and are bound to consider.

"We cannot overlook the fact that the Lusitania was a British ship flying the British flag and subject at any time to be put into the actual naval service of the government. Indeed, it is stated that at the time she was attacked she was carrying military reservists to England for service in the British army.

"True, there were American citizens aboard, but it must not be forgotten that they went aboard a belligerent ship with full knowledge of the risk and after official warning by the German government. When on board a British vessel they were on British soil. Was not their position substantially equivalent to being within the walls of a fortified city? If American citizens stay within a city besieged or threatened and the enemy attacks, what should our government do if our citizens should be killed? I express no opinion at this time. I am merely suggesting reasons why we should maintain our equilibrium, and should not rock the boat until we know what we are about.

"Aside from the possible loss of American lives, it will be for us ask ourselves just where we come in. At the present moment and with the light now before me, I confess that it appears to me that, from our standpoint as a neutral nation, the Gulflight case presents a more delicate and serious complication than the case of the Lusitania."

AMERICAN VICE CONSUL AT CHEMNITZ MISSING

This organization said Mr. Foote left his post a month ago for America. Nothing has been heard from him since, and it is thought he has been stopped by the German authorities.

Washington Interested in Foote's Disappearance

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The state department has no record of a leave of absence having been granted to Vice Consul Foote, without which, officials say, it would be most unusual for him to leave Germany. The department has had no word of Foote for some time, and was much interested in the report of his disappearance.

(By Associated Press.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 8.—"The news of the sinking of the Lusitania is most distressing," said former President Taft here today. "It presents a situation of the most difficult character properly awakening great national concern.

"I do not wish to embarrass the president or the administration by a discussion of the subject at this stage of the information except to express confidence that the president will follow a wise and patriotic course."

TORPEDOING OF SHIP LUSITANIA BRANDED AS FIENDISH CRIME

Amsterdam Telegraaf Declares Entire Civilized World Should Make Spontaneous Joint Protest on German Outrage

(By Associated Press.)

AMSTERDAM, via London, May 8.—"The torpedoing of the Lusitania," says the Telegraaf, "was a deliberate stage production of the Titanic disaster. It was a premeditated crime against a passenger ship on which were 2,500 noncombatants. It is no longer outrageous; it has become fiendish.

"Does there still exist something like conscince among the neutrals? The neutral powers remained silent when Belgian neutrality was trampled upon, when the Germans carried out practice profaning international law and submarine assassins took their first victims. Will they now look on inactively? Only the spontaneous joint protest of the entire civilized world from which Germany has separated herself can be an answer to the latest provocation."

Embroidery Gift To Women Readers

Every woman likes to embroider. At no time has decorative needlework been more in vogue than now. Each article of woman's apparel, household linens, the frocks, collars and clothing of children, the numerous fancy articles of the boudoir—all are made more attractive by the skillful hand of woman. The apparel of men is not exempt, and initials on shirt sleeves, pajamas and handkerchiefs are now considered essentials in every well-ordered man's outfit.

The range of embroidery is so varied that it would cost the housewife a tidy sum to procure patterns in the ordinary way at 10 to 25 cents each, for all the uses to which embroidery is now put. In order to meet the need for a large and varied assortment of embroidery patterns a leading manufacturer has assembled "THE INNOVATION EMBROIDERY OUTFIT," a package of more than 400 different designs covering every possible use. These would cost, if purchased singly, 10 cents each and upwards. The publishers of this newspaper, desiring to give their women readers the greatest treat of their lives, have secured an allotment of these pattern outfits from an enormous first order by a large syndicate of several hundred leading dailies.

Presented to Readers of THE JOURNAL

These embroidery outfits will be passed out to the women and girls who read these columns, for a small expense amount which is just about the price of half a dozen patterns purchased in the usual way.

Figure out for yourself what it would cost to buy 400 patterns for even 10 cents each, and you will realize that this distribution is practically a gift for which every woman and girl will feel deeply indebted to this newspaper.

These patterns cover the embroidery field exhaustively—there will be no need for your hunting up a pattern elsewhere for some special use. You will find them all in the "INNOVATION EMBROIDERY OUTFIT" —more than 400 of them, and in a wide variety of the latest designs.

Innovation Embroidery Outfit

68c for 400 Patterns and FREE OUTFIT Consisting of Embroidery Hoops, Assorted Needles, Bodkin, Stiletto and Full Instructions.

Each design can be transferred from six to fifteen times—the result of a new discovery which makes these patterns at least 10 times more valuable than those made by other processes.

In order that every reader may be fully equipped to begin work at once, we will present, as a gift, to each person taking the 400-pattern outfit for 68 cents, a complete working outfit consisting of a six-inch pair of embroidery hoops, package of assorted embroidery needles, bone bodkin and stiletto, together with an illustrated instruction folder, showing and describing all the latest embroidery stitches.

For 68 cents you get enough patterns to last you 68 years, and you need never buy a pattern for any purpose from another source as long as you live. Mailed anywhere for 75 cents.

137 AMERICANS OUT OF 188 LOST THEIR LIVES.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—A dispatch received at the state department early today from Consul Lauriat at Queenstown put the number of rescued from the Lusitania at 631, and added the names of four Americans saved to those mentioned in a previous dispatch, making a total of 51 Americans saved. Few others were rescued, he said.

Out of the 188 Americans on board, 137 were lost; only about one-third of the Americans—51—were saved, according to the latest dispatches from the American Consul Lauriat at Queenstown.

The four additional names mentioned by Consul Lauriat are N. N. Allen, Patrick Shattery, M. Byington and Mr. Brooks.

ADMIRALTY'S STATEMENT PLACES LIST OF RESCUED AT ONLY 658.

By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 8.—Fifteen hundred persons, 137 of them Americans, lost their lives, the British admiralty estimates, when the Lusitania was torpedoed and sunk yesterday off Old Head, Kinsale, Ireland. The known survivors number only 658, while there were 2,160 souls aboard the great liner when she was attacked. Of those saved 595 were landed at Queenstown and 11 at Kinsale, while 52 others are reported to be aboard a steamer.

All but one of the rescue fleet of torpedo boats, tugs and trawlers, which went out from Queenstown, have reported. There is a slender hope that fishing boats may have rescued a few more.

In addition to the living brought ashore, the bodies of forty-five who died of injuries or were drowned have been landed at Queenstown. Five more are at Kinsale, and it has been reported that an armed trawler accompanied by two fishing boats has picked up 100 others.

The work of compiling a list of those saved is progressing slowly because of the indescribable confusion at Queenstown, but apparently few of the first cabin passengers are among the survivors.

The United States consul at that port can account for only fifty-one Americans saved out of 188 who were aboard.

Of the Americans aboard 106 were in the first cabin; sixty-five in the second and seventeen in the steerage.

The heavy loss of life among the first cabin passengers is believed due to their calmness and self-possession in face of danger. Most of them were at luncheon when the vessel received her death blow, and declined to rush for the boats and life belts. They believed the Cunarder would remain afloat until assistance could arrive.

A considerable proportion of those at Queenstown are members of the crew, including Captain Turner, with the first and second officers. All the other officers are believed to have perished.

There is no evidence, however, that the time-honored rule of the sea, "Women and children first," was violated. At least one of the survivors, a Toronto newspaperman, gives evidence that there was no panic among the crew, and that the sailors acted promptly in getting the passengers into boats.

Apparently every precaution had been taken against a surprise attack. Lookouts were on the alert constantly as the giant steamship sped toward the Irish coast.

Difficulty was experienced in launching the boats because of the heavy list of the Lusitania almost immediately after she was torpedoed. Several of the frail craft evidently capsized as they were launced or soon afterwards.

Many of the passengers owed their rescue to life belts, which kept them afloat until they were picked up. Among this number was Lady Mackworth, daughter of David A. Thomas, the Welsh "coal king," and Julian De Ayala, Cuban consul general at Liverpool.

Investigation has failed to reveal that the steamer was given any warning. The lookouts sighted the submarine's periscope a thousand yards away, and the next instant they saw the trail left by a torpedo as it flashed on its course. Then came a terrific crash as the missile pierced the liner's side, followed almost immediately by another, which littered the decks with wreckage.

The liner's course was turned at once towards shore. Four torpedoes apparently were fired but only two hit.

The loss of life caused by the torpedoes themselves and the explosions they caused, must have been terribly heavy.

The tragic freight of bodies taken to Queenstown bears evidence of the havoc wrought. Many of those taken ashore were seriously injured, and more than a score died after they were removed to Cork and Queenstown hospitals.

A coast guard who witnessed the sinking of the ship believes she sank within eight minutes. His story is confirmed by a Cork farmer, who was working near Old Head, Kinsale, when he heard shots and, looking seaward, saw a steamer with her bows in the air. He said hardly ten minutes later she keeled over on her side and sank.

A resident of Ardfield estimates the ship was five miles from shore when he heard the crash of the torpedo when it pierced her side. For a moment she seemed to move slowly straight ahead and then suddenly stopped, her bow sinking and the stern rising. Then she keeled over and disappeared from sight. Within a few minutes ten rescue boats had reached the spot where she went down.

The trawler Daniel O'Connell came upon two of the Lusitania's boats containing sixty-five passengers, mostly women and children, in a deplorable plight. The trawler took the boats in tow and was proceeding with them when it was intercepted by government tugs which took the survivors to Queenstown.

A long line of stretcher bearers marched from the piers as tugs and trawlers arrived. The people of the Irish city opened wide their homes to the refugees. Everything possible is being done for their comfort.

Probably no event of the war has caused such intense excitement in London as the sinking of the Lusitania. Enormous crowds surrounded the Cunard offices all night, scanning anxiously the bulletins from Queenstown. The company announced that an accurate list of survivors would be compiled as soon as possible, but that the immediate needs of those saved were being given first attention. The press of London expresses intense indignation at the tragedy.

LUSITANIA CARRIED 2,160 PERSONS, DECLARES OWNER.

LONDON, May 8.—Signals have been received at Queenstown that an armed trawler believed to be the Heron and two fishing trawlers are bringing in 100 more bodies.

The Cunard Line agent stated that the total number of persons aboard the Lusitania was 2,160.

BODIES OF VICTIMS FILL BIG WAREHOUSE; STILL MORE ARRIVING

Queenstown Turned Into Great Morgue--Many Seriously Injured Taken to Hospitals and Boarding Houses

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—The bodies of victims of the Lusitania disaster are arriving on every incoming boat.

The Cunard warehouse, being used as a temporary morgue, already has been filled and sixty more bodies have been taken to the town hall.

Additional dead lie in the hotels and boarding houses, the victims of the injuries and exhaustion. Still others are at hospitals to which were taken those whose condition appeared most serious.

Two little children brought ashore clasped in each other's arms have not yet been identified.

The women landing presented a pitiful appearance. Some were covered only with blankets. Many children were without their parents.

The funerals of most of the British victims will be held at Queenstown Sunday.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The Cunard line today received a cablegram from Liverpool saying the admiralty had announced that only a few first class passengers had been saved and that three boats were reported to be bringing 100 bodies to Queenstown.

Inquiries for Passengers Swamp Cunard Office

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—When the Cunard line offices opened early today the first bulletin issued—the text of the announcement made by the Press bureau at Liverpool last night, stating that 658 survivors had been landed—strengthened the belief that the loss of life would be great, especially among the first cabin passengers.

Although few inquiries came early to the offices, telegrams by the hundred poured in overnight and the company's telephone lines were choked with calls.

By noon the offices were filled by men and women, many of them crying, appealing for word of relatives and friends. Several hundred more, unable to crowd into the offices, waited on the sidewalk.

The walls of the offices and the counters were placarded with passenger lists showing all aboard. A check mark in ink was placed opposite the names of those reported saved. There were many white gaps between the check marks.

Most of the inquiries were for passengers in the second cabin—in which there were more than 600—and the steerage.

A message indicating that the survivors landed in Ireland would sail today for England, was received shortly before noon. It read:

"Queenstown wires all passengers for Liverpool must be at station waiting for 6 o'clock connection for Holyhead. Will send you complete list as soon as we can get it ready."

F. P. Gaskell, in charge of the outbound freight of the Cunard line, denied a report that there had been picric acid aboard the Lusitania. Mr. Gaskell said there were no explosives, ammunition or any inflammable material on the ship.

There was frequent mention of the fact that the advertisement placed by the German embassy in New York newspapers the morning of the Lusitania's sailing, had reappeared in the newspapers today. This advertisement reminded the public that Germany had declared a war zone about the British Isles, and warned travelers that they would embark at their own risk on ships flying the flag of the allies.

When line officials were asked today to comment on the apparent lack of a convoy, W. T. Stead, publicity agent of the line, said:

"One of the first things we did yesterday was to issue an order that no official of the line should make any statements. We decided at once to confine ourselves simply to giving out the cable message we received. It would obviously be improper for us to do anything else.

"You will doubtless get some comment on this question from the other side. It should be very likely be the subject of a statement in parliament."

At the offices it was announced at noon that it was known seventy-nine of the first cabin passengers had been saved, according to lists compiled from their own advices and other sources. A revision of the passenger list placed the total passengers aboard at 1,924.

The crew numbered 665, making a grand total of 1,919.

Relatives of Victims Throng London Office

LONDON, May 8.—A half hundred relatives of Lusitania victims maintained a night-long vigil in the London offices of the Cunard line.

The continued absence of definite information is leading to pathetic scenes. The rush of inquiries recommenced at an early hour and grew constantly as the day progressed, but news was very slow in arriving. Lists of survivors when they came were short and incomplete.

NATIONAL BISCUIT CO. MEN HOLD BANQUET

Southern representatives of the National Biscuit company held a banquet at the Piedmont hotel Friday evening, at which the opinion was generally expressed that now was the time to start an aggressive campaign for business.

The visitors represent the territory south of Virginia and east of the Mississippi. They are gathered here in a two days' convention, and while here will be shown the company's quarters at 465-7 Whitehall street, under the management of W. F. Catling.

A SITUATION THAT MUST BE FACED

STOCK MARKET AFFECTED BY SINKING OF STEAMER

Shares Break Violently at the Opening--Heavy Selling Orders

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Stocks broke violently at the opening of the market today. The entire list was adversely affected by overnight developments relative to the sinking of the Lusitania, and heavy selling orders came from all over the country.

Opening prices were from 2 to 5 points below last night's close. Fifteen thousand shares of United States Steel was offered in one lot at 2 points below yesterday's close.

Wall street began the day in solemn and thoughtful mood. The thoughts of many leaders of finance turned to Washington.

Bankers and veteran brokers accustomed to remain away from the financial district at the week end were down town early. Offices of stock exchange firms were thronged. The heads of the big international banking houses were on hand.

A torrent of selling orders was unloosed when the gong rang. Transcontinental as well as English shares were among the weakest issues. Bethlehem Steel, a so-called war specialty, fell a fraction on the first offering, then dropped 5 points from last night's close. United States Steel was offered in one block of 15,000 shares at 52 to 52 1-2 against last night's close of 54 1-2.

Westinghouse Electric opened with 6,000 shares at 82 to 85 against yesterday's close of 92. Studebaker declined 5 points. Reading, Goodrich, Baldwin Locomotive and American Car fell 4 to 5 points, and coppers fell 2 to 2 1-2 points.

The only stock of importance to show even a slight gain was Baltimore and Ohio, which rose half a point but soon reacted.

London's prices for our securities were lower, but not materially so.

On the floor of the exchange the scene before the opening was one of suppressed excitement. A very large percentage of the 1,100 members had gathered long before the opening, and the visitors' gallery was crowded.

Recoveries more or less complete soon followed the early break, indicating the substantial character of the buying. The market became more normal toward the close, as prices underwent readjustment and trading diminished in volume. There was every indication that the banks and stock exchange were in thorough accord and in control of the situation.

Sinking of Liner Causes Break in Price of Wheat

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, May 8.—Wheat broke more than five cents a bushel here today chiefly on account of trade disturbances brought about by the sinking of the Lusitania. It was said that because of the loss of the Lusitania a large number of British freight steamers about to sail from the United States had been stopped, at least temporarily, by the owners. Wheat which closed last night at $1.31, sold down today to below $1.26.

All Germans Ousted From London Exchange

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 8.—Resentment against Germans over the torpedoing of the Lusitania was so strong on the stock exchange today that the British members united and turned at their fellow members of German origin, and also all German clerks, bodily out of the house.

The British members have arranged to have petitions put up on every market on Monday asking the committee to exclude all such members from the house. The members of German origin all have naturalization papers.

ALFRED VANDERBILT AND ELBERT HUBBARD HAD MANY FRIENDS HERE

Former Attended Horse Show Seven Years Ago, While Latter Lectured at Grand Theater and Was Guest at Banquet.

It was seven years ago that Atlanta was host to Alfred G. Vanderbilt and Elbert Hubbard, neither of whom has been heard from since the Lusitania, on which they were passengers, went down.

Vanderbilt was here for the horse show—the next to the last held in Atlanta; Elbert Hubbard lectured at the Grand theater, engaged in a joint debate with Sidney C. Tapp and Rev. E. Dean Ellenwood, and with Richmond P. Hobson, was tendered a banquet at the Piedmont hotel. Hundreds of Atlantians recall these occasions.

The auditorium had been opened but one year when Vanderbilt was here for the horse show. But a short time before he had been the subject of world-wide gossip when he drove his famous coach regularly on a route near London. The very coach was brought by him to the Atlanta show and he drove it down Peachtree.

He also entered a fine string of horses and himself drove his mare, "Lady Katherine," in the run-about class. That year he won the cup for runabout horses offered by the Piedmont Driving club and the next year, while he did not come to the last Atlanta show himself, "Lady Katherine" again won the cup and Vanderbilt became its owner for all-time. The millionaire horseman was extensively entertained while in the city and made friends with numbers of prominent Atlantians.

MARRIED MRS. M'KIM.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt soon afterward acquired added interest in Atlanta. He was divorced and shortly following his visit to Georgia married again. His bride was Mrs. Margaret Emerson McKim, of Baltimore, former wife of Dr. Horace McKim and a sister of Mrs. Jack Horner, a well known Atlanta woman.

Elbert Hubbard's last visit to Atlanta was his most famous one. He had lectured here once or twice before under the auspices of the Atlanta Lecture association, of which James R. Nutting was president, but in January, 1908, he delivered his famous talk on "Doctors, Lawyers and Preachers," as a part of the Alkahest lyceum course. This was his last visit here.

The Hubbard lecture was rather a severe attack on these three professions, characterizing each one of them as obsolete and of no good to the world. So Russell Bridges invited a local lawyer, a local doctor and a local minister to reply. The lecture was turned into a joint debate, Hubbard speaking one hour, his opponents twenty minutes each.

The Grand theater was packed to the roof. Sidney C. Tapp, at that time quite a figure locally and now somewhere in the west, had been selected as the lawyer, and Dr. Broughton had been asked to speak for the ministry. At the last moment, however, Dr. Broughton refused to speak, and Rev. E. Dean Ellenwood, former pastor of the Universalist church, agreed to take his place.

Hubbard treated the whole affair as a huge joke and the Atlanta papers carried humorous stories about the event.

On the same occasion Richmond P. Hobson happened to be in Atlanta and he was invited to meet Hubbard at a banquet given the two distinguished guests at the Piedmont. It was right after Hubbard had severely scored Hobson in one of his publications, but the hero of the Merrimac smilingly shook hands with his critic when J. R. Nutting introduced them at the banquet.

ROOSEVELT CALLS SINKING OF LINER AN ACT OF PIRACY

"On Bigger Scale Than Pirates of Old Worked," He Said. "We Owe It to Humanity to Act!"

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 8.—Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, after learning details of the sinking of the Lusitania late last night, made this statement:

"This represents not merely piracy, but piracy on a vaster scale of murder than any old-time pirate ever practiced. This is the warfare which destroyed Louvain and Dinant and murdered scores of men, women and children in Belgium. It is warfare against innocent men, women and children, traveling on the ocean, and to our fellow country women, who are among th esufferers.

"It seems inconceivable that we can refrain from taking action in this matter, for we owe it not only to humanity, but to our own national self-respect.

"I can only repeat what I said a week ago when in similar fashion the American vessel Gulflight was destroyed off the English coast and her captain drowned. I then called attention to what I had said two months previously, when the Germans established this war zone and announced that with mines and submarines they would commit the deeds that since they have actually committed; and that these deeds could by no rule of international law be regarded otherwise than as pure piracy."

"Not Good Time to Rock Boat," Says Beck

NEW YORK, May 8.—James M. Beck, former United States deputy attorney general, quoted President Wilson's recent note to Germany regarding the protection of American life and property on the high seas tonight at the fifth annual dinner of the trust companies of the United States and members of the trust company section of the American Bankers' association.

"Now we are meeting under extraordinary circumstances," he said. "If ever there was an occasion in which silence is golden, it is tonight. Because we may be, for all we know, in a very critical hour for our government. A disaster has happened which has filled all of us with horror and which, I take it, has filled most of us and maybe all of us with reasonable apprehension.

"There is a good deal in what our president has said about rocking the boat and it is not a good time to rock the boat. At the same time those who are in the boat should refrain from rocking, and, I suppose, may entertain the justifiable hope that the captain will not sleep on the bridge; that the captain and crew will do all they can to keep the ship on an even keel into the stormy waters that may be ahead of her."

Mr. Beck referred to the recent note to Germany, in which reference was made that this cousntry "should be constrained to hold the imperial government to a strict accountability" for acts of their naval authorities, "and take any steps that might be necessary to safeguard American lives and property."

A BAD CASE AND ITS RELIEF

Lady Tells Details of Ten Years of Suffering Which Now Lies Behind Her.

Wallace, Va.—Mrs. Mary Vest, of this town, says: "About ten years ago, I had very poor health, and for five years it steadily got worse. I could not stand on my feet. I got so I could only drag about in the room. Most of the time I was not able to do my work.

I had terrible bearing down-down pains, my back ached all the time and was very weak. I could scarcely carry anything and suffered agony when I lifted anthing. The muscles in my abdomen were so weak I could scarcely lift myself up straight, and I thought I would surely grow crooked. I had difficulty in walking, it was so painful. I suffered in hips and back and could hardly raise up at all. At times, I couldn't sit on the chair—would have to lie down. I was in such agony. I just sat around and cried.

At this time, about five years ago, I began to take Cardui, at my mother's insistence. After two or three weeks' use I saw an improvement. The pains got less gradually until they disappeared. In two months I could walk without pain and could do most of my work. For about three years my improvement was steady and continued until I had back my health and strength.

The cure has been permanent, for I have been in good health for the past two years, due to my having taken Cardui, which effected the cure.

All druggists sell Cardui. Try it.

Judgment of U. S. Supreme Court Made Judgment of District Court

Everything is in readiness for the resentencing of Leo M. Frank, all that now remains to be done is for Judge Ben H. Hill of Fulton superior court to set a time, this will probably be Monday.

Clerk O. C. Fuller of the United States district court, acting for Solicitor General Dorsey of Fulton superior court, Saturday morning drew up an order making the judgment of the United States supreme court in refusing Frank's appeal for a writ of habeas corpus the judgment of the district court. Judge W. T. Newman signed this order; a certified copy was made for the solicitor's office; Assistant Solicitor E. A. Stephens went to the federal building and got this copy; Solicitor Dorsey then had the order filed with the clerk of the superior court. No other formal legal steps will have to be taken before the resentencing, as Solicitor Dorsey filed some days ago the necessary application for a habeas corpus to bring Frank from the jail into Judge Hill's court.

Judge W. T. Newman's order reads: "Leo M. Frank vs. C. Wheeler Mangum, sheriff; habeas corpus appeal to the supreme court of the United States.

"In open court, Atlanta, Ga., this the 8th day of May, A. D., 1915.

LYERLY GETS GOOD RAIN; FARMERS ARE REJOICING

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LYERLY, Ga., May 8.—This section was visited early Friday morning by a heavy rain, the first of any consequence since the first week in April, and it is estimated that it will be worth thousands of dollars to the farmers of this section of the state. Cotton seed that were planted during the early part of April have not come up on account of the extremely dry weather and much farm work had been postponed until rain came. The strawberry crop here has been badly damaged by the hot, dry weather and the crop will be short.

SAVANNAH MEN PLAN FIGHT ON AUTO TAX

Harvey Granger Takes Lead by Refusing License on His Machines

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 8.—Savannahians do not like the idea of paying $5 on every automobile they own as a special tax to the state. They are preparing to make a strong fight against the payment of this sum. The Savannah Automobile club has taken up the fight. Harvey Granger, a former president of the club, who owns three or four machines, has announced that he will not pay the tax and has directed his attorneys to look up the law with a view to fighting it. The opinion prevails in Savannah that all that is needed to defeat the collection of the tax is for some one to make a determined fight on it in the courts. As every man in Savannah who owns an automobile makes a return of his automobile as regular property there is a natural protest against paying a special tax on it. The motorcycle owners are also getting ready to make a protest on the same ground. They pay for their wheels in their tax returns and they do not like the $5 extra business.

3 NEGROES SENTENCED TO DEATH IN QUITMAN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

These will be Sheriff Wade's first executions and the first time in twenty-one years there has been a hanging in the county.

INSPECTORS ARE WANTED TO INVESTIGATE ARRESTS

Police Board Tells Charities' Committee Plan Is Favored but Money Lacking

When the members of the Associated Charities' committee urged before the police investigating committee Friday night that three inspectors, one for each police watch, whose duties should be to investigate arrests, should be appointed and that more electric street lights should be installed to illuminate dark alleys and corners of Atlanta, they were reminded that the police board had no power or money to install lights, nor could the board hire inspectors unless the city council appropriated the money.

The charities' committeemen were told that the police board had favored for some time past the appointment of the three inspectors, but that they did not have the money to pay these extra men. It was suggested that the committee-men take the matter of inspectors and lights up with city council.

V. H. Kriegshaber, Cator Woolford, Linton Hopkins and E. H. Goodhart, directors of the Associated Charities, composed the committee, of which Philip Weltner acted as spokesman. The police investigating committee, of which S. A. Wardlaw is chairman, listened at length to suggestions Friday night. Chief Beavers was present and told Y. H. Kriegshaber that he believed many of the suggestions were good.

Philip Weltner stated that Atlanta had two and a half times more arrests in proportion to its population than any city in the United States, and said this was the fault of the Atlanta police system. He stated that the police records were kept so confusedly that it was next to impossible to sift the criminals from those arrested for petty offenses, and recommended a new system of card indexing, which, he stated, would do away with present confusion. With this system, he said, records of all prisoners could be kept and found at once.

M'DONOUGH WANTS ROAD TO FOLLOW SOUTHERN

Citizens Do Not Favor Dixie Highway Going Down Central Railway

M'DONOUGH, Ga., May 8.—Editor The Journal: In Tuesday evening's Journal appeared an article relative to a meeting held in Griffin, Ga., Monday night, May 3, composed of committees from all the towns interested in the "Dixie Highway" going down the Central railway, and among those mentioned is McDonough, Ga.

McDonough was not represented there, in fact we are very anxious to have the "Dixie Highway" come down the Southern railway through McDonough, Locust Grove, Jackson, Indian Spring and on to Macon, as previously outlined.

We feel that our being advertised as supporting the other route mentioned would be misleading and do injustice to ourselves as well as the towns depending on us for support, therefore kindly ask you to correct the error. We are in the contest to the finish and propose to build and maintain the best and shortest road from Atlanta to Macon.

Yours truly,

Says Booze Fighters Use Lumber Yard As Carousing Point

Complaining that whisky drinkers use the lumber yard of the Southern Furniture company as a "carousing point" and filing empty bottles into the company's mule yard, resulting in severe cuttings and other injuries to the mules, Oscar Pappenheimer, secretary and treasurer of the company, wrote to Chief Beavers Friday requesting that the Bellwood viaduct gang be cleaned out, hauled before the courts, and sent where they belong.

Mr. Pappenheimer's letter states that the space under the Bellwood viaduct near Means street is without a light, and is the main meeting place nightly of people who "indulge freely in whisky and act otherwise as may be expected."

Morning after morning, the letter states, especially on Monday mornings, the company's adjacent mule yard is found littered with bottles, resulting in injuries to the mules.

Chief Beavers ordered the officers on this beat to make arrests and break up the drinking gang.

ROBERT L. BEVERLY MAKES A STATEMENT

Claims His Arrest at Woodlawn, Ga., Last Saturday Was entirely Unjustified

Robert L. Beverly, the young man arrested at Woodlawn, Ga., last Saturday on a charge of attempting to force a young lady to accompany him to a baseball game at Manchester, was in Atlanta Saturday, and stated that the published account of his arrest did him an injustice.

"I had an engagement to take two young ladies to Manchester," said Mr. Beverly. "One of them could not go, and the other was inclined to give up the trip. I insisted and she agreed to go, and we went to the depot to take the train for Manchester.

"At the depot her brother-in-law and a young man who had tried to call on her came up and called me aside. Her brother-in-law asked me what was the trouble between us. I told him there was no trouble at all. He asked me if I had threatened her life, and I told him I had not, and suggested that he ask the young lady to verify my statement. He questioned her and she put his mind at rest. He then started to leave, but the other young man, inspired by motives of jealousy, demanded that I be arrested, and the young lady's brother-in-law gave in to him.

"If was arrested and required to give bond to appear Monday morning before a justice of the peace. Meanwhile, however, an investigation disclosed the fact that my arrest was entirely unjustified and the case was not even called for trial."

Hints on Embroidery

By Kathryn Mutterer

(OF THE EMBROIDERY DEPT. PICTORIAL REVIEW)

New Doily Designs of Refined Simplicity

There are two kinds of simplicity, one might say; one is engendered by indifference and shows the absence of care in every line, the other is sponsored by an innate sense of refinement that amounts to a little less than genius.

The latter style of simplicity is shown in the newest household linens, especially doilies. A pattern that is not too elaborate may be carried out in the various sizes of the set, from the smallest to the largest. Complicated effects have always to be modified in the smaller sizes, sometimes causing doubt as to whether all of the doilies are of the same set.

A design that will recommend itself to the woman of refined taste is shown on a doily set made of a fine, firm weave of linen. The work is done in a combination of eyelet and solid embroidery, arranged to form a border effect. The edges of the scallops are finished with buttonhole embroidery. The edges may be worked flat if preferred, but are much more durable and beautiful when padded.

There are three rows of embroidery above the scallops, two of eyelet and one of solid satin dots, the dots being worked between the rows of eyelets.

The simple designs require smooth, even work, and to insure this, after drawing the thread from the skein it should be passed lightly between the forefinger and the thumb to make sure which way the twist runs. Now insert the thread in the needle so that the twist seems to run downward. This gives great smoothness in the finished work, for if the opposite end is inserted in the needle the thread will be drawn through the linen against its twist, thus causing roughness and knots.

The small round eyelets are punched with a stiletto, then made by whipping over and over running stitches to border the hole to be surrounded. These running stitches should be small and as even as possible.

The satin dots are very beautiful if carefully embroidered. They are about the size of a half dime and are well padded before they are worked. In making satin stitch the thread should be single. Doubling crosses the "lie" of the two threads and prevents the achievement of an even stitch. The inexperienced needlewoman should bear in mind the fact that satin stitches should be laid side by side, very close together, each stitch spanning the entire width of the form to be embroidered. The stitches may be either straight or slanting, though some people make a distinction, calling the straight stitchery French work and the slanting stitch. The work may be done either toward or away from the embroiderer, but the needle should always be brought up on the left-hand edge and inserted on the right-hand one, pains being taken to preserve a clear-cut margin.

A very pretty fad is to embroider dining room linens in colors that are congenial to the furnishings and decoration of the room. For this reason handsome doily sets are embroidered in Wedgewood blue, tan and green. The success of embroidery in color on broidery Pattern Outfit" now being presented by this newspaper, as explained elsewhere in these columns.

Hand linens are among the most satisfactory articles to embroider, for if they are cared for intelligently they last for years and give the home that individual touch which we all strive for, and which, after all, can only be obtained by the evidence of careful thought and painstaking effort on the part of the homemaker, and surely every home should show this interest.

LA FAYETTE BUILDING CITY SEWER SYSTEM

LA FAYETTE, Ga., March 8.—The J. B. McCreary company, of Atlanta, which was awarded the contract for the construction of the city sewerage system, began work last week and has finished laying mains on Magnolia street. Mr. Poindexter, who is superintending the work, reports rapid progress and predicts that if the work is not hindered, LaFayette will have a complete system of sewers within three months' time. The health conditions of the city are good at present after the "clean up" campaign waged here last week, but with a proper sewer system as is being installed, LaFayette will not have any fear of an epidemic of any disease.

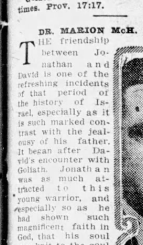
INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON, MAY 9

May 9, 1915. 1 Sam. 20:32-42. Golden Text: A friend loveth at all times. Prov. 17:17.

DR. MARION McH. HULL.



THE friendship between Jonathan and David is one of the refreshing incidents of that period of the history of Israel, especially as it is such marked contrast with the jealousy of his father. It began after David's encounter with Goliath. Jonathan was as much attracted to this young warrior, and especially so as he had shown such magnificent faith in God, that his soul was knit to the soul of David, and for a child's knit to another. He showed his friendship at the very beginning by stripping himself of his armor, giving it to David. As they were thrown more in contact with each other he learned to love David as his own soul. When the father sought to take David's life after the latter had wished him from the court, Jonathan pleaded with his father in his friend's behalf. As the result of it, David was restored to his place in the palace.

THE TRYST.

After Saul's second attempt to pin David to the wall with a javelin while David's flight to Naioth, David became convinced that Saul would leave no stone unturned in his effort to destroy him, He knew that Saul knew that he was to be his successor, and although he had made a covenant with Jonathan, I think he was not quite sure what Jonathan's attitude might be, now that his father had shown such determined opposition to him. So learning that he comes back near Gibeah and sent for Jonathan, telling him that he is convinced that his life is determined to kill him. Jonathan assured him that such could not be the case, as his father always confided in him about anything that he would do. But David very wisely replied that Saul knowing Jonathan's love for him might not have the family confidence on this matter, and so far as he was concerned he recognized that there was but a step between him and death. (But, my! what a long step that was. It was one that had to be long enough to step over God's will.) Jonathan recognized the true significance of what David had said, and so he replied, "Whatsoever thou soul desireth I will even do it for thee." So David made this request of him—that he test out his father and see what his attitude was. The means of telling this was an arouse from a feast.

THE TEST.

Did David act truthfully in this matter? Was it right to connive or evade in real truth? As a lie ever justifiable? Or in extenuation of the circumstances, it may be said, that it took a long time to develop in the minds of men God's standard of what is right, judged by the light which we have in our day, and he could not be expected. David recalled the covenant of Jehovah which he had made with Jonathan, thus revealing him to be a loyalty and faithfulness in carrying out his request.

Jonathan and David renewed the covenant which they had made, but Jonathan adds this clause. He recognizes at least in part that David should be king in the next king, and while he was certain that David would show him loving kindness, he did not know what might happen to his children as the result of the changing dynasty. And so, as a loving father, as well as a faithful friend, he provides that David shall not only show loving kindness to himself, but also to his posterity.

Now, you recall how Jonathan ascertained the truth. You remember the meal, the absence of David, the explanation, the anger, and his terrific reviling of Jonathan's mother; and when Jonathan continued to show his friendship for and love for David, his attempt to kill his own son. In great grief, Jonathan left the meal, and ate no more that day.

You recall the sign of the body, the lad's unconscious service, which meant, however, speaking to wear while the life of the greatest king of Israel. Just like that little boy we may be doing things that are of great import and we never know at the time.

You will recall the meeting between these two friends. Their great distress and David's excessive love and loyalty, and Jonathan's return to the city, while David is lost to view in the wood. These two friends met only one other time, and that was when David was being hunted like a deer in the wilderness of Ziph, and Jonathan came out to comfort him, and reminded him of his covenant.

THE TRUTH.

There is no more beautiful example of friendship to be found anywhere at any time than the friendship of Jonathan for David. He showed it by loving his as his own soul. He showed it by standing up for him when he needed someone to stand up for him. He showed it by taking no thought of self wherever his friend's interest came in conflict with his own, and he showed it by sacrifice which will be hard for us to appreciate.

What is a friend? The word came from an old Anglo-Saxon word, which means "lover." There have been many definitions given, possibly that of the little boy is as good as any other, who said, "A friend is a fellow who knows about you and loves you just the same." But I think we may have probably a clearer idea of what a real friend is if we turn to the one source of true friendship, God's word, and there we find that a friend loveth at all times. Therefore, "the wounds of a friend are better than the kisses of an enemy," because they are dealt in love. We find that there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother," even though other friends who claim to be such, who are seeking merely to those who are wealthy and who give gifts, but show their lack of right to claim that word by failing in love at the time of need. We find that a friend is on ewho will lay down his life for another, and that a friend gives up all that interferes with friendship.

It is no easy matter to be a friend. We have a friend, though, who has shown himself such, even Jesus, for He has fulfilled all the requirements of friendship, even to giving up His own life for us, and He has said that we may be friends of His if we do whatsoever He commands us.

The Mother Speaks
(London Chronicle.)

Who shall allot your praise, my son?
The happy hopes, your willful feet
Outran my pain—and I believed it wasted years.

Are solace now that lights my tears.
Beyond the long suspense, tho' ne'er we meet,
Yet, Heart of Mine, we meet when day is done.

What part is yours? The brave, the true,
And mine the waiting while God wills.
Beyond all hope I see believed could be
An angel watching tells to me.
Far hence where thund'ring blood-rain
blinds your eyes
My guardian faith and trust are born
in you.

So be it dear—and for the rest
Mine to love always and to send
Through God the high ideal I would set
Before you who ne'er failed me yet.
So shall I know and feel you dear
And clasp you back, God won, upon my breast.

Lookout now for a protest against too much rain.

Still, the allies can't blame it all on booze. The Germans aren't teetotalers.

Now and then you are startled by a headline telling about peace, and read further only to find that it applies to the baseball war.

The Lusitania.

The sinking of the Lusitania with its fearful toll of life brings home to Americans as nothing has done heretofore the horrors of a war which has been piling horror on horror since its beginning. That many lives have been lost is certain and it may take several days for the full extent of the havoc wrought to be revealed.

If as now appears the case the Germans chose the Lusitania for destruction in order to impress Great Britain and the rest of the world with the seriousness of its submarine blockade, they could have selected no more shining mark than the great Cunard liner. Of all the steamers plying between this country and Europe, the Lusitania was the undisputed queen of the seas at the time of her destruction.

She was the only vessel of her size and speed left in the regular passenger carrying service. All the others were requisitioned by their nations for war duty. In fact it was the Lusitania's great speed that was relied upon to keep her clear of danger from submarines. She was fashioned to be as nearly unsinkable as human invention and human ingenuity could make her. She left New York with a total of 1,251 passengers and a crew of 816. Of the passengers 188 were Americans and among this list were many names prominent in contemporary American finance and literature.

The fate of the Lusitania serves to impress anew the deadliness of the submarine in warfare. Neither the armor of dreadnaughts nor the racing speed of passenger steamers can avail aught against the invisibility and the suddeness with which a submarine can move against an enemy. Of all the awful engines of modern warfare, the submarine seems to have demonstrated its effectiveness most clearly.

The sinking of the ship with the undoubted loss of American lives adds immeasurably to the neutrality burdens of this nation. The country, however, can look to President Wilson and his well-proven coolness and sanity in trying times to hold a steady course, acting as he has always done with due deliberation and with unswerving firmness for the protection of American rights and interests.

Well, as far as the farmers are concerned, it was like raining money.

Claims and counter claims make this war a dull affair. What we need is a board of arbitration or a referee.

Wise men may have their doubts about some things, but Colonel Roosevelt always comes to the rescue with an opinion.

Fruits of the Dixie Highway.

Whatever route may be chosen for the Georgia link of the Dixie highway, every county that enters the contest will be substantially repaid. Within itself, a good road is a public fortune. Every dollar and every day devoted to this purpose will be a permanent investment, and will benefit the people, regardless of the State route that is selected. It is very gratifying, therefore, to note the enthusiasm with which scores of communities are entering upon generous rivalry for a place on the Dixie highway map. From the Tennessee to the Florida line county boards, chambers of commerce and other business and civic organizations are preparing to spend money and labor in improving the roads of their territory.

The Whitfield county commissioners, says The Journal's correspondent at Dalton, have voted to concentrate the convict forces on the southern part of that county with a view to putting the roads in perfect condition. The Catoosa commissioners have appropriated to be spent immediately on road surfacing. In Gordon county, funds raised through private subscription and road machinery purchased by the county are available.

Likewise in middle Georgia, plans for road betterment are vigorously under way. The commissioners of Pike county are bending all their resources to the enterprise, and those of Monroe are equally active. The Spalding commissioners have pledged that county to maintain the year around every mile of the highway which traverses their district, and the business men of Griffin are doing admirable work in the same cause.

From Valdosta comes the news that a forty-mile road is being built from end to end of Lowndes county, and that bridges are being raised fifteen feet above high water. Hamilton county, it is said, will spend approximately a hundred thousand dollars on its portion of the Dixie highway. Also the counties north of Valdosta have what The Journal's correspondent calls "good roads fever," and have organized "to make the road from Macon to the Florida line, the National Highway, the best chain of roads in all the South."

At a recent meeting of the Nashville, Ga., chamber of commerce, the business and farming interests of Berrien county adopted definite and far-reaching plans for good improvement, and the county officials signed an agreement to build "a permanent highway, according to standard specifications, throughout the country" in the event that either of the proposed routes through Berrien is finally designated.

These instances are typical of the deep-seated and widespread enthusiasm which the Dixie highway project has aroused in Georgia. The enterprise already is yielding rich results; and, as we said at the outset, the pleasing fact is that every county will be well repaid for its efforts, whether or not it is given a place in the new highway.

The Republicans show they have no hope by entertaining the possibility of Fairbanks for 1916.

China, Japan and the United States.

With the world generally still asking with reference to the European war, "What caused it all?" it is not to be hoped that there can be any clear understanding of what is really back of the controversy between Japan and China in the Far East. Noting this difficulty the New York Post says: "Of Japan's demands upon China, those upon which we have definite information are concerned with affairs in southern Manchuria, already a sphere of Japanese influence and deal with details of economic and administrative adjustment that involve no vital changes in the general international situation. . . . Diplomatic haggling, a confused business at best, here takes on the confusion of Oriental diplomacy." The Chinese press, however, insist that the sovereignty and territorial integrity of China is threatened by the Japanese demands. But the latest indications are that Japan has modified its demands and that China will accept them in their modified form and the entire matter will pass to a peaceful settlement.

World events of the past year may nevertheless serve somewhat as a guidepost in this labyrinth of mixed and hidden motives. These events have brought home the fact that whereas in controversaries between men "cherchez la femme" is a good rule to follow, in controversies between nations, "Look for the dollar" is an even more accurate guide.

In Japan's move against China the dollar is readily discoverable. It is to be found in the words of Count Okuma, the Japanese premier, in a recent interview with Samuel G. Blythe published in the Saturday Evening Post. The premier declared that Japan regarded China as the natural field of Japanese commercial expansion. Said he:

> China falls naturally within the commercial sphere of Japan. I repeat we have no designs on the territorial integrity of that country and no plans for closing the open door; but certain phases of our relation with China have long been left in an indeterminate situation owing to a variety of causes, and it has appealed to us that this is a right and proper time to establish permanently our own position there and to insist on what we consider are the benefits we should have, owing to our natural advantages. . . . In other words we do not protest if other nations shall secure what they are entitled to, and expect them to do so; but we for our part intend to have what we are entitled to, also."

The situation between China and Japan is of particular concern to the United States only as it touches the "open door" policy and treaty rights of this country with China. That these are in no wise threatened by the course that Japan is pursuing and intends to pursue is demonstrated in a statement issued Thursday by the state department of this country: The statement is as follows:

> At the beginning of the negotiations the Japanese government confidentially informed this government of the matters which were under discussion and accompanied the information by the assurance that Japan had no intention of interfering with either the political independence or territorial integrity of China and that nothing that she proposed would discriminate against other powers having treaties with China or interfere with the open door policy to which all the leading nations are committed.

The statement further declares that the United States has no thought of surrendering any of its treaty rights with China and that its sole interest in the present negotiations is that they may be concluded in a manner satisfactory to both Japan and China.

That would indicate that as the situation stands there is no likelihood of this country becoming involved in the imbroglio in the Far East. In this connection the statement of Mr. Blythe, who has spent several months in Japan studying Oriental affairs as they touch this country, is interesting. Says Mr. Blythe in the Saturday Evening Post:

> The United States isn't going to war with Japan over China nor for China. That is the dream of the white men in the East who are out of touch with sentiment at home, and who have no other recreation than the discussion of international politics and the formulation of theories thereon without in most instances the supporting basis of fact. The greatest war declarers in the universe are the white men who live in the Far East. . . . China will never bring the United States into war with Japan unless there is a distinct stain put upon our national honor by Japan, which will not—to the best of my belief—be the case.
> The alarmist who sees war in every mention of the United States and Japan in connection with China will find little in this to confirm his apprehensions.

The Roosevelt-Barnes affair may be another manifestation of the world-wide impulse to have a scrap.

Feldspar and Mica Deposits of Georgia

THIS is the title of a very valuable report just issued by the state geological department of Georgia. The report, which was prepared by Dr. S. L. Galpin, formerly assistant state geologist, contains 192 pages, a number of attractive half-tone cuts, and a large colored map showing the location and distribution of the most promising mica and feldspar deposits of the state.

The first twenty-one pages are taken up in the discussion of the crystalline area, or that part of the state wherein the mica and feldspars occur. This is followed by several pages giving a description of the various kinds of feldspars and mica, and also the modes of occurrence, method of mining, grading, testing and marketing of these minerals.

In the second part of the report the deposits of mica and feldspar are described by counties, which for convenience are divided into eight sections. Following the description of the individual deposits by counties is a condensed summary of the report, in which the author calls attention to deposits of both feldspar and mica in a number of counties that are of special commercial promise.

To the report is added three appendices: one giving an abstract of the various patents issued by the United States patent office on methods for extracting potash from feldspars and other silicates; another on the use of ground feldspar for commercial fertilizers, and a third on the chert of northwest Georgia as suitable material for pottery manufacture.

The publication of this report at the present time seems quite opportune, as there is now quite a pressing demand for mica, due largely to the shortage of the foreign supply, which has been materially affected by the European war.

Copies of this report can be secured from Prof. S. W. McCallie, state geologist, by payment of the postage, 10 cents.

Why the Idler Is Miserable

BY H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

It is a physiological fact that every part of our anatomy, from our head to our heels, is constantly receiving all sorts of sensations. These are transmitted through the nervous system to the brain.

If we are busily engaged in anything our mind is so occupied that we do not pay any attention to these bodily sensations. We do not even notice them.

But the idler, simply because his mind is not properly occupied, does notice them. He fixes his attention on them, and by so doing makes them more intense.

Then he begins to worry about them, is filled with strange fears, grows restless and irritable. Finally, a nervous invalid he is obliged to seek medical aid.

This is the history of many a case of human wreckage. And this is why, instead of work being the curse so many people think it, it is actually one of the greatest blessings of life.

A soap maker, having become wealthy, sold his soap making establishment.

"I'm going to retire now," said he, "and lead a life of leisurely ease."

Less than a month later he turned up at his factory with the demand:

"Sell me back my business, or at least let me spend part of every day working. I'll work go on. Unless I have something to do I shall go mad."

He had discovered, before it was too late, the truth that everybody ought to know; the truth, namely, that your work is your life.

The supreme virtue of work is that it keeps us from thinking about ourselves. When a man is under no compulsion to work, or when for any reason he decides to be an idler, his thoughts are almost certain to become self-centered, with disastrous results to his well-being.

He may adopt any of the innumerable methods by which the drones of society "kill time." But he is without any real motive in life except in ministering to his own whims. Soon or late he finds his nerves become abnormally sensitive to everything that interferes with his comfort. Then, indeed, he is well on the way to a "nervous breakdown."

Fortunate is he if he comes under the care of a physician wise enough and courageous enough to say to him:

"Get something to do; do it systematically and conscientiously; put your whole heart in it, and soon you will be well again.

"You don't need medicine. All you need is work and self-forgetfulness."

Economy as a Game

BY E. K. WOOLEY.

"Economy," said my friend, the Business Woman, "is a game."

"That's new to me," I dismally grunted.

"It's the way you look at it," she explained.

"Well," I remarked, "I looked at it right side up and upside down, from front and rear, and all around, and I've X-rayed it, but I never yet saw any sport in economy."

"The trouble with you," enlightened my friend, the Business Woman, "is that you've looked upon economy as an enemy, instead of shaking hands with it and saying, 'Sit down, old pal, and let's see if we can't win once in a while against the fellow that's soaking us.'"

"Oh, yes," I said, "I know that old business of living on peanuts and wearing one suit of clothes 'steen years. I've tried it. But it never brought me any joy. People turned up their noses at my old clothes, and to this day my stomach turns at the smell of a peanut."

"I don't mean that sort of thing at all," he declared. "I mean that you can learn to economize and have a bully good time doing it. Now just listen to me.

"In the past I've made a good deal of money, but I spent it just a little quicker than I made it, with the help of my family. We got to that point where we felt all we had to do, when we wanted a thing, was to go and buy it. The result was, when I took stock the first of the year, we hadn't any money saved and were in debt. We also had a lot of useless truck on hand.

"Well, ever since this big war began I've been hinting to my family that we ought to get some cash on hand. They all agreed that I was right. But the cash didn't accumulate. Then, the first of the year, I invited the family to sit down and have a business talk.

"We laid out a plan of campaign, with the bills of the past year spread before us. I kept 'em filed, you know, in a big filing book. We went through those bills and scratched out the things we could have done without; and say! Maybe we didn't sit up and take notice.

"Then we discussed what we had been expecting to get in the near future, wrote it all down and scratched out what we didn't need—and the paper was mostly full of scratches.

"Finally we decided that in the upstairs den we would keep a big pad of paper on which each would write her wants as she thought of them during the week.

"On Saturday nights we went over these wants and scratched out what wasn't necessary to actual comfort and the good of the soul. You'd be surprised how your longing dwindles for anything you don't have to have, when you have a whole week to long in. Also, when the other folks begin to make comments on your extravagant tastes and show you where your duty lies, it's surprising how reluctant you are to spend money on foolishness.

"Now this doesn't mean cutting out good times, good clothes, and good eats. But we don't waste. We're learning to utilize by-products, as it were. We're educating ourselves to think and to exercise self-control, and we count that week lost where we can't honor at least one of the family for some sensible economy, or some new way of doing things to save time or strength, or in some way add to the interest of the game. It's really quite exciting.

"And the way we've eaten into the profits of the public utilities corporations is a caution! If anybody leaves an electric light burning unnecessarily the rest of the family jumps on him with all their feet, and it's put down on the bulletin board. We've cut down on the gas bills, because we've learned new ways to save on gas. And so on down the line."

"And what's the sum total-to-date?" I inquired.

"We have just celebrated our first $1,000," shouted my friend, the Business Woman, "cash in the savings bank! And we see our home in the country looming on the horizon!"

WAR AND ART

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

IN A recent lecture now being published and sold for the benefit of a war relief fund, Prof. Selwin Image, of the department of fine arts of Oxford university, says that the future development of art in the world will be advanced by the present hostilities which have involved such tremendous sacrifice in art treasures. "War and art are not enemies," declares Prof. Image. "On the contrary, peace may be the greatest enemy of art by giving it an opportunity for stagnation. The greatest art [illegible] of Greece and ancient Italy were produced in times of war."

C. R. W. Nevinson, England's greatest futurist painter, who was one of the first English artists to go to the front, has lately been invalided home after several months of service. Although serving as a soldier, Nevinson has made many sketches which are likely to develop into future masterpieces. He said upon his return: "All artists should go to the front to strengthen their art by a worship of physical and moral courage which is developed upon the battlefield. Under such influence, they will quickly free themselves from the canker of professional archaeological, antiquarian and beauty worshipers. Modern art needs not beauty of restraint, but vitality."

Many persons may disagree with so radical a statement, and dread the portrayal of gruesome battlefields which must be the art of the near future. Yet the artists who are now being brought into daily contact with war can hardly fail to gain a strength and courage from the experience which a peaceful studio life would never give them. An American art critic predicts a unification of art standards as one result of the war. He prophesies that painting will outgrow the confines of different schools, and will combine the best elements of all, from the old masters to the cubists.

American millionaires, who have been buyers of European art, have been accused of vandalism in removing masterpieces from historic settings. They will soon be regarded as benefactors to the art world, in that they have saved these treasures from destruction. Even a European critic admits rather patronizingly: "A beautiful statue or painting is beautiful wherever placed. It is better for the world to have it owned by a wealthy Philistine who seeks only the doubtful glory of personal ownership, than to remain in its original setting at the mercy of war and plunder.

It is claimed that over 9 per cent of the artists of France are now in the service of their country. A late dispatch states that 1,800 out of the 2,000 students of the Beaux in Paris are now at the front. Gustave Boisson, the guardian of the Boisson school and an artist of unusual ability, was among the first to be announced as killed. Henri Brandon, Masson, Leroux and Marack are in the army, and most of the other teachers of importance have either entered the army or turned their studios into temporary hospitals for the care of the wounded. This practical work falls little short of the battlefields as a means of bringing the artist face to face with human anguish. The value of such an encounter has been recognized since the beginning of art. An early Greek painter is said to have watched a man and watched his dying agony. He claimed in defense of his act that he wished to know how to "paint a groan." It is said that a later painter strapped his model to a cross and then stabbed and lacerated his body in order that he might be more naturally depict the suffering of the crucifixion.

A story is told of a Turkish sultan who once held Giovanni Bellini a prisoner, and ordered him to behead the beheading of John the Baptist. When the picture was completed the potentate pronounced it tame. To emphasize his criticism he drew his scimitar and cut off the head of one of his slaves, saying to the artist, "When you paint blood it must look like this."

The English painters are not much behind the French in their patriotism. The last authentic list gives nearly 1,500 who have enlisted in active service. These include both painters and sculptors. Such names as Robert A. Bell, Phillip Connard, George Causeen, Alexander Jamison and William Nicholson are enrolled on the list, while the best known sculptors include Derwent Wood, Frederic Poole, Walker and Adrian Jones. Germany has published no list of her artist-soldiers, but it is known that few men able to bear arms are left at home. The same condition prevails in Austria, while in Hungary there is much indignation over the defection of Philip Alexis Lazlo, regarded as the greatest figure and portrait artist of modern Hungary. At the beginning of the war he became a British citizen and is said to be engaged on some important war pictures in his London studio. He is regarded as a traitor in his own country, and his three large pictures have been removed from the walls of the museum at Budapest.

The exceptional art collection now assembled at the San Francisco exposition may be regarded as a positive demonstration of the art standing of this nation. Some have such valuable pictures and other treasures been loaned for exhibition purposes. Prominent among them is the German collection of modern art, which is so valuable that the exposition has insured it for the sum of $50,000. The fact that the United States government detailed the steamer Jason, belonging to the navy, to collect and transport the paintings facilitated their collection. The Jason went over to Europe laden with Christmas presents for the children of the war zone, and it was permitted to remain until the art treasures of the different countries could be assembled.

The popularity of the military painting, which had been decidedly out of favor for the past quarter of a century, is again becoming established. Few modern war pictures are as yet upon the market, but a strong demand is in evidence for reproductions of old ones. A painting by a German artist, Ferdinand Pauwels, entitled, "Faithful Unto Death," represents Christ crowned with thorns appearing as a vision to a soldier dying upon the battlefield. It is having a heavy sale in England despite the ban upon German art.

A picture entitled, "Cease Firing," by Wilfred Beausquesne, depicits an incident of the Franco-Prussian war. A young nun walking across the battlefield to minister to the wounded soldiers is herself struck down by a bullet. "For Love of the Fatherland," by G. Graf, painted in 1843, is also an incident now being frequently repeated in the European war zone. A beautiful young woman with a shorn head looks wistfully at the pile of beautiful hair which had just been cut. It is claimed that this picture has created much sentiment in the minds of women in favor of sacrificing their tresses in the present struggle. One of the masterpieces of Detaille, the most celebrated of the French military painters of the last generation, is owned by John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, and has been publicly exhibited for years. Its reproduction is now under consideration. It portrays a battle ground strewn with dead and dying men, and the figures of the great conquerors of the world from Alexander the Great to Napoleon in the foreground, indicating that they had risen to power only by the sacrifice of countless human lives.

LIKE "THE NOBLE SIX HUNDRED"

BY HERBERT COREY

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY IN FRANCE—One continues to hear of the battle of Neuve Chapelle. Perh ps the material results achieved there by the English were inconsiderable. But there has not been a battle more desperately fought on either side during the war. Men died as though dying were the merest commonplace. They did things that—indeed—would seem impossible to do. It seems obvious that the Germans were taken by surprise and outnumbered. Even so the English cost was no one knows how many thousand lives.

"There were two lessons to be learned from that engagement," said a German officer who had taken part in the battle. "The first is that an entrenched position can be taken—if the price is paid.

"The second was a bit of a surprise for us. It is that the new English are better than the old English. We had not expected that."

Not that raw levies were thrown against the German positions at Neuve Chapelle by Sir John French. Those were not green troops who stormed the German trenches. But the "old English"—the men of the professional army—are pretty nearly gone. The first months of the war fairly well disposed of them. Their shattered ranks have been filled by the newly enlisted youngsters, and those youngsters are now veterans. My German friends think that the Neuve Chapelle affair was intended as a "try out" by Kitchener. He wanted to see what his colts would do.

"They are fine colts," said the German officer who had watched them in action. He spoke with the accent of a man skilled in men. "Those men who charged us at Neuve Chapelle were not gutter snipes. They were not slum sweepings. They were the best blood in England."

CHARGE AGAINST A STREAM OF BULLETS.

He said he saw their faces, both in the fight and as prisoners and as the dead lay on the field. They were lean, full templed, long-jawed men, these who first went under that hellish fire. Youngsters for the most part. Men who looked as though they were the sons of good fathers, or city clerks or boys who had played in the open air. He was enthusiastic about them, this expert. His passion for his country—and I know no man who is so devoured by a flame of patriotism—has not blinded him to the quality of these colts who leaped across that red ploughland at Neuve Chapelle.

"Let me tell you of one thing I saw," said he. "It was the most wonderful deed I have ever heard of on any field. The stars come in my eyes when I think of it."

His eyes were moist. His voice was lowered and trembled as he spoke.

"I think it was the West Kent regiment," said he, "but I cannot be sure. Some of the West Kents were there, I know. They charged across an open field against us. Our fire was as though we had played a stream of bullets on them. As they came across that open place, cheering and waving their rifles, I could see the men stumbling and falling forward on their faces, and dropping sidewise. Gaps opened in the line so that I can remember seeing the landscape back of them. But they always closed."

The English were over at last, having gained the last possible inch. But they were hopelessly exposed. They could not go forward, and they could not stay. With every minute men were leaping into the air like shot birds, or dying muttering in their bellies, or cramming their cap rims between their teeth that they might not cry out their agony. They were being slaughtered without a chance to retaliate. Finally the order came to fall back.

"They had a hundred yards to go," the German said, his voice quivering. "And what do you think those brave, god-like, damned fools did? Instead of running back as the men of any other nation would have done—as the trained soldier is told to do—they rose to their feet. They walked back—no, by heaven, they strolled back! They stopped to light cigarettes. They picked up their wounded and carried them home. They were cut down by the score, but they didn't hurry their pace."

Put that with this other incident, if you want to know how men fought at Neuve Chapelle. Death is nothing to these trench fighters on either side. Agony is nothing. The long-linked suffering of the wounded man who is days in dying among the dead is nothing. They die passionately—happily.

"You cannot imagine what that first English fire was at Neuve Chapelle," said my friend, the officer, who was there. "It burst upon us like a sudden storm, early in the morning. We had not known they had concentrated their artillery upon our front. Now we find—from their own papers—that they had more than 350 guns upon a front of less than 2,000 yards."

A GUN EVERY EIGHTEEN FEET.

That is at the rate of one gun—big gun or little gun—about every six yards. It isn't possible to jam them any closer. The service need about room. How the English managed to do it without detection remains one of the mysteries of the war. They obviously did. Their reserves of ammunition were at hand, too.

"You cannot imagine the clamor when those guns began," said my German friend. "It was maddening. It beat at my temples as though with a hammer. I did not think at all of the danger I was in. I prayed that this hellish noise would cease."

Under the fire, of course, the advanced trenches of the Germans were simply blown away. Men could not escape from them, if they had wished. A level sheet of flame seared across that field. The runaway would have crumpled on the edge of the trench from which he sought to flee. There was nothing to do except to take shelter in the bombproofs and wait for death. A few men lived through it. The English say they were dazed and stupefied when their captors came. Their eyes were blank.

"There was one masked German battery," said my friend, "almost in the center of the arc of English fire. I replied, of course. We always reply. Under the swift flow of fire cannoneers and concealment was simply washed away. The men at the battery were killed. One gun was struck fair on the side by a heavy shell and thrown high in air. The captain of the battery and one other gunner alone survived.

So they continued to serve the single gun that was left. They did not work more rapidly, says the man who watched, than if they were at practice upon Tempelhof field. Their movements were cool, mechanical, accurate. A torrent of English fire was turned upon them. The earth spurted into the air on either side, but by one of the miracles that recur in war they were not touched.

"It seemed as if the English guns opposite must be white hot," said the man who watched. "There were no longer breaks in that awful chorus. The roar rose higher and higher, like a pursuing flood. The two Germans looked at each other and smiled. I saw it through my glasses."

The next moment—even as he watched—there was but one man at the gun. A shell, perhaps—the one man worked on, but slowly. There was a black patch upon his blouse. Then he suddenly sat down upon the ground. His shoulders worked, as though he were coughing. He turned himself sidewise and sought his rest.

QUIPS AND QUIDDITIES

It is probable that many queens of the kitchen share the sentiment good-naturedly expressed by a domestic recently taken into the service of a young matron of Chicago.

The youthful assumer of household care was disposed to be a trifle patronizing.

"Now, Lena," she asked earnestly, "are you a good cook?"

"Ya-as'm, I think so," said the girl, with perfect naïvete, "if you will not try to help me."

* * *

"The land," screamed the orator, "the land from which is produced the food of the people should belong to the people. There is no food used by the people that does not depend upon the land and, therefore—"

"Fish!" called out a voice. And there was silence for a space.

"Myrtle is in a quandary."

"What's the matter with her?"

"She loves music, but she needs physical culture."

"Yes?"

"But she hasn't time for both."

"I can't tell her a way out of the difficulty."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; just tell her to buy an accordion."

* * *

The curtain descended slowly. Hamlet had died a beautiful death and was being carried out shoulder high and by his loyal friends. The audience sat with bated breath, so impressed with the solemnity of the occasion. Not a whisper was heard, and the silence was so intense you could hear the beating of your own heart. All at once a shrill whisper was heard distinctly, "My, ain't that just swell!"

DEATH OF PASSENGERS BRANDED AS MURDER

LIVERPOOL, May 8.—Alfred Booth, manager-director of the Cunard Steamship company, made the following statement today:

"I desire to send my heartfelt sympathy, wherein all the Cunard directors and managers join, to relatives and friends of the American passengers murdered by the German submarines.

"I am certain the whole civilized world is as one in grief for the sorrow and suffering caused, and in loathing for this treacherous attack on innocent lives, so many of whom were women and children.

"Every possible step is being taken to relieve the immediate wants of the survivors at Queenstown after their terrible experience."

LOUIS J. LEMONI MUST FACE TRIAL IN NEW YORK

Requisition Honored by Governor Slaton Several Days Ago Is Allowed to Stand

Louis J. Lemoni, alias Morris Lubin, alias Morris Loeb, said to have been a witness in the trial of the New York gunmen who killed Rosenthal, the gambler, and who was arrested in Atlanta about three weeks ago on advices from the New York authorities, must return to that city to stand trial on indictments charging him with forgery and grand larceny.

The requisition of the New York governor for the extradition of Lemoni was honored by Governor Slaton several days ago before he left for New York. Governor Slaton, however, directed Thomas Conner, his requisition clerk, to hold up the requisition if a hearing was asked by Lemoni and to call into consultation Attorney General Grice in such a case.

The hearing was held Saturday morning. Attorney T. Donnelly Bennett, representing Lemoni, opposed the honoring of the requisition on the ground that Lemoni was not the man wanted. Attorney Stiles Hopkins, representing Thomas M. Fay, a New York detective, who came to Atlanta for the prisoner, contended that it had been clearly shown that the man who went under the name of Morris Loeb in Atlanta, and who admitted that he had employed the alias of Morris Lubin in New York, to escape being made a witness in a court case, was in reality Louis J. Lemoni.

After hearing from both sides the attorney general and Mr. Conner decided there was no reason why Governor Slaton's order honoring the requisition should not stand, and Lemoni was turned over to the New York officer.

Several days ago the prisoner applied to Judge Ben H. Hill for a writ of habeas corpus, which application Judge Hill denied.

Detective Fay stated Saturday that a brother of the prisoner had recently been sentenced to a long term in Sing Sing for the same offenses charged against Lemoni.

JUDGE JEFFRIES IS GIVEN IVORY-HEADED UMBRELLA

Court Room Is Packed When Friends Pay Tribute to New Ordinary

Before an audience that packed the court room to the walls, Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, ordinary of Fulton county, was presented with an ivory-headed umbrella by his court associates Saturday morning in Judge J. T. Pendleton's court.

Judge Pendleton, under whom Judge Jeffries has served for ten years as deputy clerk of the superior court in charge of civil business, spoke for twenty minutes, praising his friend Jeffries to the skies, lauding him as the personification of truth, integrity and devotion to duty.

Judge Jeffries responded feelingly and then pandemonium broke loose. Those in court, lawyers, attaches, deputies, judges, some of whom had known Judge Jeffries during his entire term of service in Fulton's court, almost fought to shake his hand.

Mr. Jeffries then actively entered upon his duties as ordinary, after serving as a deputy clerk of the superior court for twenty years. He was with Judge Pendleton since October, 1895.

Detectives have been assigned to the case and are making an investigation.

CATHOLIC EX-METHODIST PRAISED AND CRITICISED

Rev. W. A. Farmer, Confirmed in Savannah, Gets Many Letters

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 8.—Rev. W. A. Farmer, the Methodist missionary who yesterday joined the Catholic church in this city and announced his intention of entering the priesthood, has been the recipient of many letters and telegrams from friends throughout the state referring to his change in religion. Some commend him, while others criticise him rather severely. He took it all good naturedly.

Mr. Farmer is known to a great many people in north Georgia. He has friends in Conyers, Atlanta and other places where he has resided. He issued a long statement when he was confirmed as a member of the Catholic church, in which he stated that he had made the change only after mature consideration and prayerful thought.

Bishop Kelley has taken great interest in the young man and Father Mitchell, the chancellor of the Diocese, who is himself a convert to Catholicism from Presbyterianism, has been sponsor for the neophyte. Mr. Farmer is preparing to go to Atlanta in a short time. His mother and sister live there.

WHITE HOUSE NOT PRESS BUREAU, SAYS TUMULTY

Secretary Calls Gardner for Using Executive Offices to Issue Statement

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Representative Gardner, while at the White House today getting permission for some constituents to visit the parlors of the mansion, issued a statement on the Lusitania disaster urging that President Wilson deal firmly with Germany, and giving his ideas of what Colonel Roosevelt would do.

When Secretary Tumulty heard of it he issued a statement saying the White House resented Mr. Gardner's "using the executive offices as an annex to his press bureau."

GERMANS MAINTAIN MANY STRONG SUBMARINE BASES

Two of Biggest Reported Off Cape Finisterre and Near Bear Haven

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Much confidential information has reached here recently as to the operations of German submarines, and their bases. One base for six powerful submarines is said to be off Cape Finisterre, the rocky projection at the northwest "shoulder" of Spain. That point commands a great sweep of the Atlantic lanes leading to and from English and French ports, and the great British highway of commerce with East India.

Another base is thought to be in or about Bar Haven, at the southwest extremity of Ireland, fifty miles due west of the scene of the sinking of the Lusitania. The coast is wild and ragged, with deep and desolate bays and coves, affording unusual opportunities for hostile craft to escape the vigilance of British destroyers. Prior to the war, German ships were in the habit of carrying on maneuvers in these bays, until the British government put a stop to it.

GIRL'S ARM IS BROKEN BY AN AUTOMOBILE

As the result of what the county police say was an unavoidable accident, Agnes Dorsey, thirteen-year-old daughter of R. D. Dorsey, a real estate agent of Buckhead, had her arm broken by an automobile near Buckhead Friday afternoon.

The car was driven by Cliff C. Mitchell. He said Miss Dorsey and her teacher, Miss Marshall, were talking along Piedmont avenue near Buckhead when he drove up from behind.

It appears that the girl became panic stricken and in trying to dodge the car ran in front of it. Mitchell ran into a telegraph pole and badly damaged his car.

He took the girl in his car to Buckhead where a doctor attended her. County Policemen McCreary and Haney investigated the accident but made no case.

Crackers Clash With Lookouts This Afternoon; Georgia Meets Jackets

Crackers Open With Lookouts This Afternoon

Manning vs. Harding Look Like Pitching Card--Lookouts Going Strong Just Now. Manager Smith Must Cut Off Five by Wednesday

BY INNIS BROWN.

After a rest of one day, brought on by the steady downpour of rain on Friday, the Crackers resume diamond hostilities again today, their opponents for the fray this afternoon being the Chattanooga Lookouts. Local fans are hoping that the day's rest helped the Crackers to pull themselves together after their rather disastrous series with the Birmingham Barons, and that they are ready to go after the Lookouts with blood in their eyes.

Charlie Harding, the lanky right-hander, is expected to be the choice of Manager Harry McCormick in this first game, while Manager Smith will no doubt choose Ed Manning to fling for the Crackers. Manning got away in pretty fair shape in his last out. He downed the Barons, and if he can fight he should be able to put it on the Lookouts.

McCormick's team is traveling at a much faster clip than they were a few or ten days ago. This was clearly demonstrated by the manner in which they went after the Vols in that last game ended. They knocked the props from under Schwartz's boys in a most brusque and abrupt manner, which would indicate that they are going to be bad customers to handle.

Recent trades and shifts made by McCormick has helped the team materially. He is now using Kid Elberfeld at second in place of Charlie Starr, who was traded to Little Rock. He also has Jud Daley, a hard hitter, in the outfield to replace Roberts, a faster, but weaker artist with the bludgeon. The Moose has also grabbed a couple of pitchers off of the Vols via the waiver route in Rogers and Clark. The former has pitched two good games for him, and has set about to vindicate his new boss' judgment in declining to allow him to get out of the league. Bill Wagner, former Gulf hurler, who has lately been with the Rocky Mt. Dodgers, is the latest addition to the Lookout hurling corps.

Manager Bill Smith expects Herbert Kelly, ex-Pirate hurler, to join the squad today. However, it is not likely that Kelly will be asked to get into the game. President Dreyfuss, of the Pirates, wired Friday that Kelly would report today. Kelly is a Mobile boy, and was formerly a star hurler for the Notre Dame university team.

In addition to Kelly, Key Perryman is expected to arrive here some time next week to join the Crackers. All details for his transfer have been completed except for the obtaining of waivers on him by the Browns, with whom he has been since the beginning of the training season. No trouble is anticipated in getting the other clubs in the majors to waive on him.

The addition of these two players means that a wholesale cutting in the club roster will have to be made in the early date. In fact, President Baugh has notified all managers that clubs must be cut to the limit of fifteen men allowed by Wednesday of next week. At present the Crackers have eighteen men on the list exclusive of the two new hurlers. These are, pitchers, Hiett, Browning, Thompson, Allen, Hiett and Manning; catchers, Smith, Jenkins and Nelderkorn; infielders, Elbel, Williams, Bisland, Tullos and Potts; outfielders, Lee, Bowden, Moran and Rumler.

This, of course, means that the Crackers will have to discard at least five men, including the two who will have to go to make room for Perryman and Kelly. In case Perryman does not report until after Wednesday then four of the present crew will be sent elsewhere. It is probable that Manager Smith may go even further, and cut his squad to fourteen men, since such a cut appears necessary in order to stay within the salary limit.

As yet Manager Smith has given no intimation as to who will go. If he carries five pitchers as he no doubt will have to do, and an extra catcher, which is considered imperative, this makes up the fourteen men, without leaving room for a utility man. However, Rumler, who is counted a regular inside outfielder, can be used as an emergency catcher, while Manning, whose chief role just now is that of pitcher, can play both the infield and outfield. This leaves the situation somewhat puzzling, but there is no way of figuring just who will be let out, until the manager makes the final cut.

Here is the probable line-up:

ATLANTA.	CHATTANOOGA.
Lee, lf	Daly, cf
Elbel, 1b	Elberfeld, 2b
Rumler, rf	Johnson, lf
Moran, cf	Harris, 3b
Smith, c	McCormick, rf
Bisland, ss	Graff, 2b
Williams, 2b	Cavesy, ss
Tullos, 3b	Kitchens, c
Manning, p	Harding, p

He has also announced the release of Third Baseman Mattley who joined the club a short time since. Clinton Perry will be sent to third, while Flick will cover second.

Barons Release Two

BIRMINGHAM, May 8.—Manager Molesworth was busy with the pruning knife on the Barons Friday announcing the release of two players. They are Outfielder "Red" Steele and Infielder Charlie Bell, a local player. The other clubs in the league waived claim on both of these players.

Lord Releases Three

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 8.—Manager Lord, of the Memphis Southern baseball club, last night announced that Marshall, a catcher, Shirley, a pitcher, and R. J. McDermott, an infielder, had been transferred to the Charleston club of the South Atlantic league. Woodruff, an outfielder, and Baskette, a pitcher, were unconditionally released.

Douglasville Wins

VILLA RICA, Ga., May 8.—Douglasville won a pretty game from the home boys here by the score of 6 to 2. The game was hard fought but was won out by the visitors because of the bunching of their hits.

Fielder Jones says that McGraw was desperate and that his attempt to play Benny Kauff in direct violation of the rules of the game was only for advertising purposes.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

This seems to be the season of bunk in its most virulent form. Bunk to the right of you, bunk to the left of you, bunk, in fact, wherever you go.

But of all of the bunk extant that connected with the Kauff case smashes all previous records. Kauff was blacklisted by the national commission for having jumped a reserve clause with the American association. On that commission are John K. Tener and Byron Bancroft Johnson.

Will these able citizens kindly answer these two queries:

1—Did John K. Tener jump a reserve clause of organized baseball twenty-five years ago—leaping from the National league to the Brotherhood?

2—Did Byron Bancroft Johnson, fifteen years ago, encourage National league players to jump their reserve clause into the American league?

The answer in each case being YES, upon what grounds of morality, logic, fairness or anything else do they vote that Kauff has committed a baseball crime? The answer is that b-u-n-k still spells Bunk.

JUST A WORD FOR KAUFF.

Kauff has received an enlarged amount of criticism over the country for his recent move, but if the true facts were known he is less to be blamed than most of those who jumped organized baseball and were taken back.

When the Indianapolis franchise went up in smoke, Kauff, legally, was a free agent.

On his transferred to Brooklyn he was due a new contract. This contract, to be legal, had to be signed by Robert B. Ward. Unless Kauff, and others who examined the inside status are lying, Mr. Ward had refused to sign that contract before Kauff left the Brooklyn club. Therefore Kauff, legally, was still a free agent. His move to go out and get more money was not only not dishonorable, but was in entire accord with the spirit of the modern game.

Those in power in both organized baseball and the Feds made a Simian wonder out of the ball player, when they were more to be blamed than he was.

ASKING A WHY.

Dear Sir—How is it that everyone seems to figure that Harvard has a big edge over Yale recently in sport? There are four major college sports—football, baseball, track and crew. In their last meetings at each of these sports Yale has won in three—crew, baseball and track—and Harvard has won in one—football. Yale's percentage is .750; Harvard's is .250. Just where does this leave any Crimson triumph?

ELI, '04.

The worm is not alone. Recent events have shown that even the Giants and Athletics will turn. Trodden upon too nonchalantly.

SOME THEORY.

Germany Schaefer has a theory as to managerial ability. Germany figures that the greatest manger in the world is a pair of blokes in there like Cobb and Crawford or Collins and Baker tearing the cover off the ball and furnishing all the runs a team needs to win.

"I'd rather have a pair like Cobb and Crawford or Collins and Baker on the field than a Napoleon or a Von Hindenburg on the bench," says Schaef. And there may be something of his viewpoint.

NOT A WINNER.

Dear Sir—I see where Mel Sheppard is asking $25,000 for injuries received in a race. Does this mean that $25,000 is what a good amateur expects to earn out of sport?

Twenty-five thousand dollars isn't so much for a good amateur to earn; not if he is a consistent winner.

OR SOONER.

"Jess Willard will start fighting again," says Tom Jones, "as soon as his contract for $1,000 a night is ended."

This makes Jess eligible to start fighting within the next fifteen minutes. Or the next eight minutes, if he so desires.

BONEHEADISM.

Colonel Germany Schaefer advanced another idea worth some comment. According to Colonel Schaefer, most bonehead plays, so-called, were made by ball players who were using their brains and trying to outguess the think the other fellow—were trying to pull something off the beaten path.

"A ball player who goes out and tries to make some play out of the ordinary frequently falls down," says the game's leading comedian, who on this occasion was talking baseball. "He may have had a legitimate chance to make good; the attempt may have been one to be commended. But if he fails he is promptly labelled a bonehead because he failed to work along old established lines. The spectators, through force of habit under certain situations, expect a certain play made, and when something else is tried and this something else fails, they immediately decide that the player's dome is composed of concrete or marble. The player who doesn't think much will make few bonehead plays because he will only try the routine. And if it doesn't work out it is merely an error."

There is quite a bit more to this than the average fanatic figures there is. Some of the greatest "bones" of baseball have been made by players with more than average brain capacity.

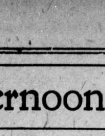
Barker Breaks Record

BALTIMORE, May 8.—A South Atlantic record was broken Friday in the trials of the South Atlantic Intercollegiate meet here. The discus throw was won by Barker of the University of Virginia with a throw of 115 feet 11 inches. The former record was 114 feet.



SAILING THE NEWS

BY INNIS BROWN

In spite of the fact that the Tech Jackets have this year one of the best track teams ever developed in the South, they will not get a chance at first honors on the track and field. This is due to the fact that they are not a member of the S. I. A. A. Although the rules of this association permit its members to go to non-members in football, baseball and basketball under certain restrictions, or conditions, none except members of the organization may compete in the annual track and field meet.

Owing to the fact that the Jackets have a strong team and would add materially to the interest in the meet, should be held in New Orleans next week, we have taken the matter up with the Tulane authorities, who will be hosts of the coming meet, and with President W. M. Riggs, of the S. I. A. A. Tulane replied that they would be more than glad to have Tech enter, but could not accept the entry unless authorized by the association through President Riggs or some other authorities.

When queried on the situation President Riggs stated that under the constitution of the association, neither Tech nor any other non-member could be allowed to take part in the meet. He quoted section 8 of article 13 of the constitution, which reads:

"No teams except those of members of this association shall take part in the annual field meet of this association."

As the president pointed out, the rule is clear and well defined on this point. However, it is unfortunate that Tech can not be taken in under the circumstances. Tech authorities have taken steps to enter the meet, and will not ask that their entries be accepted. And the matter concerning the prospects of their entries have been made from the outside.

The Jackets this year have a lot of good material, and in meets already held have put up some corking good performances. It is by no means certain that they would win the meet, for it is quite clear that they would finish second or third.

However, to judge from past records in the association meets, and from the showing which certain members of the Jacket squad have made to date, it is practically certain that the local collegians would register pretty close to forty points. This would be a rather high mark, provided the other entrants came anywhere near running on equal form.

In Mauck, and Preas in the weights, Glover in the hurdles and broad jump, Sparks in the quarter, Robinson in the high jump, and Jordan and Smith in the pole vault, the Jackets have a bunch of men who would make competition keen for the best in the south. The Jackets have no strong men in the short dashes, nor in the distance events, but in those named above, their entries would figure prominently right straight through.

The Jackets will enter the A. A. U. meet to be staged in Birmingham in the near future, their performances at this meet will offer a fair means of comparison with the winning team in Dixie. I. A. A. meet to be staged in New Orleans Friday and Saturday of next week.

Managers Are Trying to Plug Up Their Weak Spots

Sizing up time, which means to say the period required for managers to revise early opinion, which have been wrongly augmented by the performances of their squads in early exhibitions, has now about passed, and wherever a pilot figures that his team is shy on strength to keep the club up to the standard required for a pennant contender in the league, gaps are either being made, or plans laid for improvement.

Beginning today, every team in the league is due for an opponent which has not previously been encountered this season. The schedule called for a clash between four teams today, but rain butted in to interfere in both cases. From now on for the next ten days or two weeks, the southern division, consisting of New Orleans, Mobile, Birmingham and Atlanta, will be engaged every afternoon that the weather will permit, while the northern opponents, including the other four cities in the circuit.

Thus far, but two managers have deemed their material strong enough to stand the pace through the long drive. Johnny Dobbs at New Orleans and Carlton Molesworth at Birmingham, apparently are happy that they have the strength already in the club to make it a contender right on down the line to the finish, and both, of whether or not they win the pennant. Accordingly neither has made any move toward picking up any new timber.

But all of the rest have been hustling to land new hands. Over at Little Rock, every department of the team, save the catchers has been changed. Tom Downey, Al Tesch, Covington and Howard Baker are some of the new men secured to bolster up the infield. Also the Travelers have put over a deal with the Lookouts that brought Owen Chapman Starr, for second base, and Roberts as outfielder in place of Jud Daley, who was sent to the Lookouts.

On the other hand, McCormick has signed Kid Elberfeld to plug the gap at second, left by the departure of Starr. He received Daley to play the outfield in place of Roberts. He has claimed two pitchers, Rogers and Clark from Nashville, by the waiver route, and has also bought Bill Wagner, who formerly pitched for the Pelicans.

Manager Bill Smith has added Sid Smith to his catching staff, and has taken on Otto Williams to play second. He has also completed a dicker for the return of Key Perryman, who pitched for the club last season, and gets Herbert Kelly, a southpaw pitcher from the Pirates on an optional agreement. Other chances are contemplated, and it would not be surprising if one and possibly two infielders are added to the club roster before much longer.

Bris Lord at Memphis got Pete Alinson back for the third time last year, and he is said to be looking around for another infielder, and possibly a pitcher. Bill Schwartz, of Nashville picked up one hurler in Bushelman. The Vols have been traveling at a rapid gait thus far, and have been hitting and lopping the ball hard and timely. The chances are that as soon as these fellows get into their normal stride, Schwartz will find it necessary to do a bit of changing in order to get more hitting power.

Charlie Schmidt at present is directing his attention toward landing a satisfactory backstop. Baumgardner has failed to show enough to pull down the job, and Cowan does not look the part. Manley, a former college player, has been assigned to the job, but as he he has not had time to show just what he will do.

In the course of the next ten days or two weeks it is not unlikely that several of the managers will have new people in their midst, and those who know their weak spots to begin plugging up before it is too late.

WINNERS AND LOSERS

Rain cut in seriously on the program of nearly every league in the country east of the Mississippi river Friday. One game in the National, American and Federal leagues was played, and other suffered as much or more.

The Cardinals outhit the Pirates more than 2 to 1, but lost to Clarke's Buccaneers. Pittsburg was invincible when hits would have enabled the Cardinals to forge ahead. Max Carey hit a homer.

When Harry Hooper drove a homer into the right field stands scoring Thomas ahead of him, he put over the runs which won for the Red Sox over the Yankees. Peckinpaugh also hit a homer for the Yankees in that inning. The game was the first won by Boston over the Yankees this season.

Three Chicago hurlers were wild and ineffective against the Reds and the Cubs were easy victims for Herzog's troupe. Benton split a finger in the sixth stopping a line drive by Frank Schulte and will be out of the game for some time.

Three home runs featured the game between the Pittfeds and the Baltimore Terrapins. The Pittfeds got away to a lead of 8 to 2 in the first two innings, but just barely managed to nose out a 10 to 9 victory. Manager Knabe was banished for arguing with the umpires.

Five hurlers were slugged hard by the Braves and Giants, for a total of twenty-nine hits. The hitting of the Braves, however, was a little better than that of the Giants, who won by a margin of 11 to 7.

Good pitching by Shawkey enabled the Athletics to resume something of the proportions of their former selves. They hammered Jack Bentley from the box in less than two innings, and defeated the Senators without much trouble.

Pinch hitters figured prominently in the victory of the Terrapins over the Chiefs. Jack Dunn, for three years, was in one run in the sixth, and Simmons, also a pinch hitter, slammed the ball over the fence with two men on ahead. This tied the score, and Zinn, who had taken his regular turn, won the game in the ninth with another homer.

Erk Mayer outpitched Hassen Pfeffer and the Phillies beat the Dodgers. Triples by George Paskert and Gavvy Cravath in the seventh and eighth, respectively, counted for two of the Phillies' runs.

A triple play saved the day for the Tiptops against the St. Louis Terriers. In the sixth inning with runners on first and second, Johnny Tobin made a wonderful one-hand catch of a fly by Holt. He threw to Johnson at second, catching Evans, and Johnson relayed to first in time to nip Myers.

BASEBALL NOTES

Manager Rowland of the south-siders, is wearing a happy smile, because he believes that he has succeeded in getting his men into a winning spirit. The spirit counts as much as the baseballs, he believes.

If Connie Mack had the services of Jack Coombs at present it might help him to get his team up a little higher in the American league race. Coombs is doing the come-back act with success.

With Pep Young and Burns out of the infield, Hughie Jennings is doing mighty well with the Tigers to keep them from losing every game.

Branch Rickey says that he would like to have it all to a week, so that his ball players could rest up and get a chance to collect themselves.

The Schang family, of which Wally, the Athletics' catcher, is the most noted, and Robby of the Pirates, is the oldest, is getting a lot of advertising these days. There are two other brothers playing in the minors and coming along fast enough to soon get a chance in the majors. Father Schang was a player, but never got out of the minors. The home is in Wales Center, near Buffalo.

Morris Rath, former second-sacker of the Sox, who now is with the Kansas City Blues, and who has been playing third, has been shoved back to second by Manager Shaw in his efforts to bolster up the team.

Ed Walsh's sudden relapse means that his come-back act will not be made until later in the summer. The big fellow is having hard luck in trying to regain his former cunning, but he is as persistent as the jonah which is following him.

Some fans believe that Bob Fisher is the best shortstop to play on the west-side team since the days of Joe Tinker. That is not giving Fisher much credit, for he is almost as good as Tinker was in Joe's palmy days.

Athletic Club to Open New Country House Today

The new country club house of the Atlanta Athletic club at East Lake, erected at a cost approximating $100,000, will be thrown open to members of the club and their friends today. It is more than a year now since the old club house was burned, and since that time members of the club have been forced to content themselves with emergency accommodations provided by the boat house.

The opening of the new house will add a stimulus to the progress of the club. Its new quarters are of the best, and are surpassed by no country club in the south. Officials of the club are highly pleased with the new building and equipment, and they are to be congratulated on the way in which the planning and building of the new structure have been handled. President Asa G. Candler, Jr., Chairman Thomas B. Paine of the committee in charge of the country house, and directors of the club feel that the new house is a distinct credit not only to the club but to the city of Atlanta as well.

An informal opening of the new club house will be held this afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock. A full orchestra will furnish music for the occasion, and club members are urged to come out and bring their friends for this opening. Following this opening for members, a formal opening will be held next Saturday, when invitations will be extended to members of the Capital City club, the Druid Hills Golf club, the Piedmont Driving club, the University club and the Ansley Park Golf club, to visit the Athletic club in its new home.

In addition to the opening of the new club house today, the club will stage its first golf tournament of the season, or rather the qualifying round for the first tournament will be played. This tournament will be a handicap affair, handicaps being applied in the qualifying round as well as in succeeding matches.

Just now temporary greens and temporary tees are being used on many of the holes. This is being done in order to put the course in the best shape possible for the southern championship tournament which will be played over the course in June. Inasmuch as this is the first tournament of the season, it is expected that a large field of entrants will turn out for the qualifying round. As many flights as fill will play.

Preps Clash on Field and Track

Friday's downpour of rain which jinxed baseball for both the Crackers and the Tech-Georgia forces, likewise cut into the program of the prep track meet scheduled at Grant field. It had been planned to take care of all events in which preliminary heats were considered necessary. Friday, but since this was impossible all heats, both preliminary and finals, are being handled today.

Beginning this morning, Coach Alexander and his staff of assistants started the scholastic track stars on their way to the second annual prep meet held under the auspices of the Tech Athletic association. Eight teams are entered in this meet. They are Georgia Military academy, Second District A. and M., Fourth District A. and M., Rome high school, Berry school, of Rome; Thomson High school, Carrollton High school and Warrenton High school.

The meet will include twelve events besides the mile relay. These are as follows: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, half mile run, mile run, 120-yard hurdles, 220-yard hurdles, running high jump, running broad jump, pole vault, 12-pound hammer throw, twelve-pound shotput, and one-mile relay race.

Marist Wins Eight in Row

Pitching airtight ball throughout, and allowing only three safe hits McGlouchlin twirled Marist college to their eighth straight victory in the local park, downing Tech High, 9 to 2. The Junior Techites fought hard for the game throughout, and it was only in two innings that Marist was able to do anything with pitcher Smith's twisters, as he was held scoreless until the fourth round. However in this frame, they bunched hits, and sent seven men across, scoring more than enough to win the struggle.

Frank Harrison continued to enter with the hickory, poling out three safe hits in four attempts. One of his was a three-ply smash, and came in the fourth round.

Score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Tech High	100 001 000—2	5	5
Marist	000 702 00x—9	12	0

Smith and Hooper; McGlouchlin and Liddell.

Both the Boys' High, Donald Fraser and Peacock, G. M. A. games were called off on account of Junior Pluvius' insistence, and it is doubtful if they will be played off as the season ends next Tuesday.

Only One Game At Grant Field

Tech and Georgia Decide Not to Play Double Header, Senter to Oppose Ed Hitchcock

Deciding that the condition of the playing field is such that a double-header would be too much, the management of the Georgia and Tech teams decided to stage a single game between the two this afternoon on Grant field. This contest will begin at 3:30 o'clock, the time originally set for the single game.

Jim Senter is expected to oppose Ed Hitchcock on the mound. Both of these hurlers have had a long rest from actual battle, and both ought to be in shape for a great pitching battle. Now that the first game has been prevented by rain, the winning of today's game is of especial importance. If Georgia takes this game, the chances for their making it two out of three by taking one of the two games scheduled for Athens next week will be materially boosted. On the other hand, if the Jackets get away with this game, they will be pretty sure to get as good as an even break next week.

It is possible that arrangements may be made for playing the game originally scheduled for Friday on Monday, or Tuesday, though nothing definite along this line has been done yet. The Georgia team came in Thursday night and is quartered at the Majestic hotel. This would mean either an extra long stay in the city for the team, or else its return to Athens and another trip here Monday, if they decide to go home over Sunday.

Here is the probable line-up:

Hamilton Fails To Show Stuff

Brown's Crack Southpaw in First Out Since His Automobile Accident Does Not Look Like Former Self

DETROIT, May 8.—Fans witnessed what is very likely to turn out to be one of those tragedies of the diamond that furnish material for humorous yarns during the Hot Stove league season. It was a serious matter for Rickey, for if Hamilton failed to come through, the manager knew that it was curtains for him. Likewise he could discover some better pitchers than he had.

From the game's getaway, it was apparent that Earl had lost the old zip. Practically all he had was a floater, but he pitched like a veteran and kept the ball low and brought into play every bit of cunning that a successful career on the diamond had brought him. But he didn't have the stuff. For a while this worked to advantage. Then the Tigers got wise. First they bupted it, and got on bases, and then they swatted it so consistently they put him in a hole and walked.

In the seventh inning Rickey gave up and pulled the little southpaw, and it was then that the real extent of Hamilton's wasn't a person in the stand who didn't believe that the recall and the substitution of Washington was not certain for Hamilton. The fact that an accident that was unquestionably avoidable was the cause of the cutting short of a great career in baseball made the incident all the more tragic.

Schmidt Wins Tourney

OAKLAND, Cal., May 8.—Heinrich Schmidt of the Claremont Country club won first honors in the Pan-American Pacific exposition handicap amateur golf tournament Friday, defeating M. A. McLaughlin of the Midwick Country club, Pasadena, 3 up and 2 to play.

RENEWED BULL SUPPORT CAUSED RISE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 11 to 15 Points Higher Than Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Cotton opened steady and early prices ruled 8 to 10 points higher on active positions. The market's action suggested that the effect of the Lusitania disaster had been fully reflected in the severe setback yesterday. Cables were better than due and bouses with foreign connections were heavy buyers. Domestic trade conditions were considered favorable.

The market continued steady later and closed at a net advance of 11 to 15 points, with further covering and buying by trade interests.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—Cotton reacted from the effect of yesterday in the early trading today, gaining 15 to 16 points in the first half hour of business. Better cables than due and the desire of shorts for profits were the main factors at work. The rise was active and excited.

After the first advance prices eased off on selling caused by the general rains in the corn belt, but the demand again increased at the lower levels. Late in the morning the market stood at a net rise of 17 to 18 points.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW

NEW YORK, May 8.—The cotton market has been very dull and unsettled during the entire week and broke into new low ground for the movement during Friday's trading under a flood of excited selling orders and reports that the Lusitania had been sunk off the coast of Ireland. Uneasiness over the international politics, both with respect to the European situation and the affairs of the United East, has doubtless contributed most largely to the depressing and bullish sentiment during the week, while weakness in Liverpool, confirmation of the large available supplies and a tendency to abandon hope of an early peace have also operated against prices. Private tables have attributed the weakness in Liverpool to heavy liquidation caused by the progress of events from a military standpoint both in Italy and Switzerland, and to the sale there of American cotton by interests formerly credited to destinations by the British government, and also to the fact that continental competitors have been heavy sellers in the American markets. This week probably began the active operations of a bear clique which has for its object the depressing of quotations on the new crop. Sentiment at this writing is very bearish and was very much unsettled by the developments in the Irish sea. Spinners' takings appeared to be paying little attention to ordinary market factors for the time being.

STOCKS

Unmistakable Proof of Its Underlying Soundness Was Offered by Stocks

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Prices broke 2 to 10 points in today's early stock dealings, Lusitania developments provoking general liquidation. United States steel was the center of a heavy selling movement, 15,000 shares being offered at a minimum concession of 2¾ points. A large block, of 6,000 Westinghouse changed hands at a loss of 7 to 10 points. Reading, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, and Metal issues lost 2 to 3 points. What looked like concerted support was seen soon after the opening, full recoveries being scored by Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and Mexican Petroleum. Other international stocks reduced their losses in fractions.

Transactions in the first half hour were estimated at 400,000 to 500,000 shares.

Unmistakable proof of the underlying soundness in the face of adverse conditions was offered by the stock market today. Early declines of three to ten points, resulting mainly from heavy selling orders from nervous stockholders gave place before the end of the first half hour to actual gains in some cases. The tide turned as soon as it became manifest that substantial financial interests were not only supporting the market, but buying for investment. Three issues, to a point or more from their best in the final dealings.

Bonds were heavy.

The closing was irregular.

$400,000 BOND ISSUE PROPOSED IN ROSWELL

County, If Bonds Are Issued, Will Build Roads and Bridges

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

QUITMAN, Ga., May 8.—The warmest campaign ever waged in Brooks county, which is strictly non-political, is centering around the proposition to issue $400,000 worth of county bonds for road improvement. So far the campaign has been based on business considerations and has been free from the personalities which mark the usual political campaign.

The five county commissioners have unanimously endorsed the bond plan as a business proposition, and have gone on record that if the bonds do not carry taxes will be increased four mills this fall. The county and state tax rate is now 9 1-2 mills and will be increased to 14 1-2 mills to take care of the county's expenses in case the bond issue does not carry.

The commissioners have issued a statement pledging themselves to expend the bond money first on permanent bridges and turnpikes and then turn the rest to the roads if any is left, and this has made a very favorable impression on the voters.

The commissioners have called a big mass meeting of citizens in Quitman next Saturday when the bond issue will be discussed.

PREACHER-POLICEMAN ATTEMPTS HIS LIFE

James M. Bryan Drinks Bichloride at Wrightsville, Ga.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ga., May 8.—James M. Bryan, formerly a Methodist preacher and Sunday school superintendent, but a policeman here for the past two years, attempted to commit suicide at his home here yesterday by swallowing fifteen grains of bichloride of mercury. A physician was summoned two hours later and worked heroically all day to save him but little hope is held out for him. Financial troubles are said to have prompted this rash act.

Bryan belongs to one of the most prominent families in this section, being a son of Rev. G. B. Bryan, deceased. He has a brother in Tampa, Fla., and a brother in a bank in Americus, a brother who is practicing law in Americus, and a brother, a prominent business man here. Mr. Bryan has been president of the Johnson County Sunday School association since its organization four years ago.

America's Shortest Railroad

(Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

The shortest railroad in America and, at the same time one of the most profitable is the Grand Island railroad, which constitutes the only rail link in the transcontinental trade route that connects Port McPherson, on the Arctic circle, with settled parts of Canada.

This curious railroad is owned and operated by the Hudson's Bay company. It is a quarter of a mile long and cost less than $400 to build, the rails being of wood and the motive power a team. The rolling stock consists of two dilapidated flat cars, which are hauled by hand along the rails. The freight rate for all classes of commodities is $2.50 a ton and some idea of the volume of traffic can be had from the fact that in its sixty years of operation the Grand Island railway has earned profits of more than a million dollars.

A House Built in 1789

(Boston Transcript.)

The house on the corner of Paris Hill, Paris, Me., owned by Mrs. Jarvis L. Carter, is said to be the first frame house built in that town; it is 129 years old. It was built by General Jackson, Jr., the frame being raised in April, 1789, and so far completed in July that the family moved in. Only relatively bold in that section was held at this house. The original and handsome panelling of the living room remained and is one of its chief attractions and ornaments.

Your Money

TWO RECORD BOOKS FOR THRIFTY SPENDERS
By John M. Oskison.

Still they come—the record systems for thrifty spenders!

From St. Louis I have received "The Household's Household Account Book and Economy Calendar." It has a page for every week in the year, and ten spaces provide for recording what is spent for groceries, meats, vegetables, ice, milk, dry goods and clothing, rent and light and fuel, drugs and sundries, amusements and education and miscellaneous.

The author of this record says, with perfect candor, that the only necessary for a family to know how its income is spent as that a business should keep such a record—if it wants to remain solvent. He believes the woman of the family will keep the record, and should, too.

In co-operation the Young Men's Christian association and the savings department of the Mercantile Bankers' association have put out a "personal account" book which appeals to me as one of the best record systems I have seen.

It suggests in form and color a savings "bank passbook. Its double page spread has a motto at the top, a quotation from John Wesley: "Make all you can, save all you can, give all you can."

Then, on the left page, in a column 3 inches square, at the extreme left it is cut into a box in which is to be placed opportunity. Next are spaces for the time the record page covers; then, from this box to the extreme right of the double page, a line bisects the space.

Above the bisecting line is the caption, "Should Spend," and below it "Spent as Follows." Ten compartments are ruled to the right of these captions. Dollar marks and blanks invite the record-maker to enter what he "should spend" in the top space; and following "spent as follows" the compartments are "rent," "house," "food," "clothes," "car fare," "amusements," "education," "religion," "insurance," "other expense," "savings," and "total."

I especially like the challenge to make comparisons month by month between what is spent and what should be spent. "Of your wages, think out carefully how they should be spent. Write these amounts on the top line above the word 'spending.'"

Who is next? Keeping track of income and outgo is essential.

THE JOURNAL WANTS are the first aid to business advancement. They provide a summary of tabulated information for the buying and selling public.

BATHING SUITS MNUS SLEEVES TO BE ALLOWED

All Plans Made for Opening of Piedmont Lake on May 15

Sleeveless bathing suits, but not those of the one-piece variety, will be allowed at Piedmont lake, when the swimming season opens on May 15.

This year's rules for bathers have just been announced by Park Manager J. O. Cochran.

The bath houses will be open from 5 a. m. until 10:30 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. until sundown. On Sunday the bath houses will be open from 5:30 a. m. until 8 a. m. for both men and women, and Sunday afternoons from 2:30 o'clock until sundown for men only.

Swimming will not be allowed in the lake at night. Bathers will be required to use two-piece bathing suits. White suits made of silk will not be permitted. The printed rules assert that the park authorities shall at all times be the judges as to whether or not a bathing suit is proper.

The usual rules relative to the conduct of bathers and the use of various parts of the lake will prevail.

BUILDERS' EXCHANGE TO ELECT OFFICERS

THREE COUNTIES BOOST ROME HIGHWAY ROUTE

Walker, Chattooga and Floyd Determined to Land Great Auto Road

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LAFAYETTE, Ga., May 8.—No energy, time or money is being spared by the three countries of Walker, Chattooga and Floyd, to land the routing of the Dixie highway through this section. The county commissioners of the three counties have absolutely unlimited funds for construction and maintenance of the road throughout the entire length of these countries and other inducements that will be hard to put aside.

The historical interest of this route is of great significance. The route will pass through the entire length of the Chickamauga National park, studded with markers, monuments and scenery that recall the bloody struggles of the '60s. Over this route are to be found the Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Ohio, and other monuments of interest to the states through which the Dixie highway will pass. At Lafayette is the famous Bragg's oak, where General Bragg gave the first orders for the battle of Chickamauga; here is the old Presbyterian church used as a hospital during the Civil war; here is the old jail where the Andrews raiders were imprisoned; here at Lafayette was one of the oldest post-offices in the state. At Rome Sherman had his headquarters for five days, and it was from this point, after finding that Thomas could hold Hood at Nashville, he planned and directed his march to the sea.

Data concerning the mileage of this route as compared with any other route from Chattanooga to Atlanta, road material, the roadbed, the facilities for tourists, the scenery, etc., has been compiled and shows advantages possessed by no other route in this section.

Moreover, when it is understood that there is a government pike from Chattanooga to Lafayette, built and maintained by the government, when it is known that Floyd county only has a few miles of road to be constructed before her roads are in boulevard condition, when it is further known that Chattooga county has a long stretch of good roads and that several miles will only have to be resurfaced, and when it is understood that the entire roadway through these three counties can be put in first class shape within a short time and ready to be presented to the commission, and that actual work is already being done in all three counties, then it is seen that the Rome route is in earnest in its desire for the Dixie highway.

THEATERS

Headed by the Great Carter, the all-star gathering of Keith favorites at the Forsyth theater this week is making full amends for the city's most enviable source of amusement in the city. The Great Carter presents two of his astonishing mystic creations, and his "The Lion's Bride," his master-stroke of magicianship, has set the city agog with comment. Other great acts on the bill are William Pruette and company; Joe Van and Gus Schenck; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry; the Suity Family, and Genevieve Warner. Next week comes another attractive galaxy, headed by Montgomery and Moore, songland's most illustrious team.

"Woman and Wine," a story that will have infinite appeal and will be a forceful moral to youthful picture lovers, is to be offered at the Grand theater to-day only. Extra facilities are being added to care for the massive crowds that are expected to view the picture, so profuse has been the advance comment upon it coming from Broadway and northern critics where it was released only a few short days past. "Woman and Wine" is an intensely dramatic tragedy woven around the underworld and society.

PEARL RYAN ACCUSED BY LUTHER HAZELRIGS

Youth Says She Is Woman Who Put Poison in His Beer While at Lunch

Luther Hazelrigs, a youth of 265 East Hunter street, who has been in the Grady hospital since noon Friday suffering from the effects of bichloride of mercury poisoning, has identified Pearl Ryan, alias Pearl Couch, of 45 Ocmulgee street, as the woman he claims put the poison in his beer while they were lunching together in a Decatur street restaurant.

The Ryan woman and J. W. Maulding, alleged to have been her companion, will be arraigned in the recorder's court at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and at that time Hazelrigs is expected to be sufficiently recovered to appear against them.

Officer J. W. Mashburn, who investigated the case and made the arrests, also took in custody three other women, who were reported to be friends and companions of the Ryan woman. They will be arraigned, he says, on a charge of idling and loitering about the restaurant. Officer Mashburn states that recently he has received many complaints of the activity of the four women.

According to Officer Mashburn the Ryan woman admits taking a sandwich with young Hazelrigs, but denies that she put a bichloride tablet in his beer. In her stocking, the police say, they found six bichloride tablets and Maulding had a bottle of them in his pocket.

MABRY AND SANGES IN CHARGE OF NEW KIMBALL

Appointment of Temporary Receiver Has Not Affected Management of Hotel

Although a receivership suit has been filed and a temporary receiver has been appointed, the New Kimball hotel is continuing under the management of John S. Mabry and W. A. Sanges.

The suit for a receiver for the hotel was filed Friday by Attorney P. C. McDuffie, acting for Duke Fisher, F. H. Thielan and the Oglethorpe Plastering company, alleged creditors of the operating company which has a lease on the hotel.

Judge John T. Pendleton, of the superior court, before whom the case was brought, appointed Arimilus Wright temporary receiver. Mr. Wright has appointed Mr. Mabry and Mr. Sanges as his representatives to actively operate the hotel, so pending the result of the litigation there will be no change in the management.

Saturday morning an amendment to the suit was filed by the plaintiffs, who ask the court to make John S. Mabry and C. H. Barnes, as individuals, party defendants. The amendment also asks that the rights of the subleasees of the hotel property be adjusted under the suit.

WILKINSON IS URGED AS HEAD OF FAIR ASSOCIATION

Suggestion Made at Dinner to Committee Which Raised Funds for Fair

The committeemen who raised the $80,000 fund for the Southeastern Fair association, fifty strong, were guests at dinner at the chamber of commerce Friday night of President Mell B. Wilkinson.

Mr. Wilkinson, Ivan E. Allen, chairman of the subscription committee, and other workers, who have assured the success of the fair, were paid high and deserved tributes.

Prolonged applause greeted the suggestion that efforts should be made by the fair association to induce Mr. Wilkinson to accept the presidency of the permanent fair organization.

Lewis D. Hicks, on behalf of the members of the subscription committee, in an interesting speech, presented Chairman Allen with a handsome gold watch.

Mayor Woodward, S. B. Turman, chairman of the board of county commissioners, Albert S. Adams, O. T. Camp, and J. F. Letton all gave high praise to Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Allen.

Major John S. Cohen, after complimenting Mr. Allen and the members of the committee, stated that while he was unfamiliar with the plans of the fair association he wished to urge that body to induce Mr. Wilkinson to accept the permanent presidency of the association, for not only had Mr. Wilkinson kept the fair project alive, but he had made the raising of the fair fund possible by heading the subscription list with $5,000. The mention of Mr. Wilkinson's name in connection with the permanent presidency was the signal for an outburst of prolonged applause.

H. G. Hastings, one of the most ardent and faithful of the fair workers, paid a tribute to the work done by Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the chamber of commerce, who was absent from the dinner because of illness in his family.

The last speaker at the dinner was Wylie West, who had everybody smiling when "good-by" was said.

THEFT OF AUTOMOBILE ACCESSORIES REPORTED

According to employees of the Cotton States Belting and Supply company the garage in the rear of 257 Decatur street has been entered and all accessories taken off the company's delivery trucks. Tires, tools, lamps, and even carburetors, coil boxes and magnetos were removed.

L. H. Franklin has reported the theft of accessories from his automobile, while it was standing in front of the Elks' club.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W., Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.—(Advt.)

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU DEATHLY SICK

Stop using dangerous drug before it salivates you! It's horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.—(Advt.)

AUTO SAVES A MULE FROM WATERY GRAVE

Animal Was Near Death in Sewer but Dr. Carnes' Ford Pulled Him Out

Fritz, a long-nosed, long-headed, long-eared mule of the Red Rock Ginger Ale company, narrowly escaped death in Friday's storm and but for a Ford automobile and Dr. W. E. Carnes, the veterinary, would have perished in ten feet of water.

Fritz and his partner, Bill, were being driven along Carson street, near Ashby, Friday afternoon. The road was flooded and Fritz, on the left, sank through soft, red dirt into a sewer. Here, twenty minutes later, Dr. Carnes, hurriedly summoned, found the poor animal up to his ears in drink and more water pouring into the ditch every moment.

The fate of Fritz was a matter of seconds, so the doctor hitched a cable around him and attached the other end to his Ford. The Ford sputtered and bucked, and Fritz oozed promptly out of the deep. They gave Fritz a long swig of hot stuff, and Saturday he was no worse for the wetting.
